Promise Is Made to Identify Eventually Those Officials Paid Off by Lockheed

WASHINGTON, March 5-The United States today proposed an international pact to to combat corporate bribery and promised to answer ever tually those governments seeking the identities of officials hribed by Lockheed Aircraft Corporation. But Deputy Secretary of State Robert S. Ingersoil, who announced the initiatives, said that the disclosure process would take time and that the Government would not tell Japan and the Netherlands for a least six months which officials were involved in Lockheed bribery charges.

Mr. Ingersoll unveiled the two-part antibribery proposal unexpectedly in testimony before a joint economic subcommittee of Coogress, saying the charges of widespread overseas payoffs by Lockheed and other companies bad done "grievous damage" to United States foreign relations.

The proposed Welsh assembly was seen by many ardent oationalists as yet anardent oationalists as yet another step along the same path: a platform from which the spread of Welsh culture could be encouraged and expanded. But what has happened is that the proposal itself has forced many Welshmen to think anew about themselves. And what they have concluded is that while they are proud of their national heritage — as Gwyn Jones is proud of it—they do not wish to lose their

"There's been something point that men who will sing There's been something of a hacklash against nationalism," said Fred Kingdom, a soft-spoken county couoci-lor from West Glamorgan at dinner the other evening the Dragon, Swansea's best hotel, and one of many public places named after the principality's symbol. The reasons for the backlash are economic and historical. Wales cannot escape its Commercial ties with London any more than it can escape the Anglicizing in-fluences of history, heginning with the subjugation of Wales by Edward I in 1282 and extending through the Tudor kings, whn annexed Wales in the 16th century, to the brutal uniformity of the 19th century, when a royal commission asserted that the Welsh people were "imprisoned" by their lan-guage and schoolchildren were punished for speaking Welsh by heing made to wear a wooden collar: known as

Collieries Fade Away

But the collieries have retreated from the brown and green valleys: between 1948 and 1974, employment in the coal industry fell from 136,-000 to 39,000. What has taken the place of the collieries and cushiooed the shock are the industrial "estates" conceived in London and directed to Wales, huge tracts that sprawl across the countryside, providing homes for multinational giants like Ford and Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd. and British Petroleum, and jobs for the sons and grandsons of the

Polyansky Up From Farm to Politburo

00 Nov. 7, 1917, the very day the Bolsbeviks took power, Dmitri Stepanovich Polyansky rose rapidly through the ranks of Communist politicians, bovered for a while at the fringes of substantive power, theo began a long fall that culminated today in his ouster from the ruling Politburo. It was a career shaped and bruised by the roughand-tumble world of Soviet

At the end, Mr. Polyansky became the scapegoat for the catastrophic failures of Soviet agriculture. Even though the Kremiin had officially placed most of the fault for last year's bad harvest on the fickle weather that plagues this country, the Government press and speaker after speaker at the 25th Communist Party Coogress had pointed at undermechanization, inadequate spare parts, inadequate research into high-yield strains of crops and other administrative defi-

Mr. Polyansky, as Minister of Agriculture, was criticized harshly. He was the highest official to be attacked during the Coogress. When Leonid I. Brezhnev, the party chief, read the names of the new Polithuro to the 5,000 delegates today, Mr. Polyansky's name was missing.

Still Holds State Post

His removal from his seat on the Politburo, a party position, does not automaticposition, does not automatically affect bis job as Agriculture Minister, a Government post. But oobody in Moscow would be astonished if he were soon ousted from that their as well. that chair as well.

His accession to the high altitudes of Soviet power was fast, perhaps too fast for his own good. Having joined the Communist party in 1939, be began his working life—according to official Soviet biographies—as a hand on a state farm. He was graduated from the Kharkov Agricultural Iostitute io 1939 and from the Higher

Party School in 1942.
From 1942 to 1945, he headed the political section of a machine tractor station. then rose to the position of first secretary of a party district organization in Siber-

During the Stalin years, he moved steadily up the rungs of the party ladder. His biography is studded with entries none more than

In 1958 Mr. Polyansky became Prime Minister of the Russiao Republic, one of 15 republics in the Soviet Union. In 1960, when he was only 43 years old, he was elected to the ruling Polithuro, then called the Presidium, as its youngest member.

"At ooe time, he really seemed like the fair-haired boy," a high-ranking Western diplomat observed today. Then hie diplomat aded, "He looked a hit too young and energetic and embrious."

This was a reference to

This was a reference to the suspicions that senior officials in the Soviet system have barbored through receot history about the bright young man who stands out, who appears to pose a threat as a rallying point for possible maneuvers aimed at shifting leadership.

Mr. Polyansky played at least several hands clearly. lo 1957, be is believed to bave taken Nikita S. Khrush-chev's side in fcrestalling an attempt by the so-called "amiparty group" to oust the party leader. Then a non-voting member of the Folitburo, Mr. Polyansky also endorsed Mr. Khrushchev's de-had Mr. Polyansky. In his book "Power in the Kremlin," Michel Tatu reports that oo Oct. 16, 1964, when the Presidium confronted Mr.

Khrushchev in the process of ousting him, Mr. Polyanski participated in the attack, criticizing the party chief for his failures in, of all things,

But Mr. Polyansky oever quite moved to the center of the power structure. In 1963, a Pravda photograph showed him at a Politburo meeting sitting not with the full members, although he was a full member then, but in a chair among the convoting mem-bers. He was regarded, because of his age, as "a junior member," a label he never really overcame.

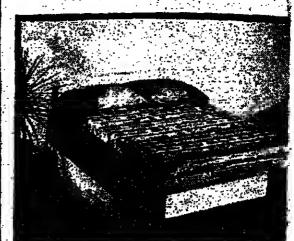

Specialists in Soviet affairs orticed in the early 1960's that Mr. Polyansky's Government post—Deputy Prime Minister—was too low for a Polithuro member, But after Mr. Khrushchev was dismissed it took a vest for missed, it took a year for Mr. Polyansky to be promot-ed to First Deputy Prime Minister in charge of agricul-

That was as high as be got. In 1973, in wake of the disastrous grain harvest of the previous year, Mr. Polyansky was demoted to Agriculture Minister. The mioister, Vladimir V. Matske-vich, was dismissed. Some Western observers believe that with bad soil, bad weather, bad organizatioo and a bad system—namely, collective farms—agriculture in the Soviet Unioo is a no-win job. Mr. Polyansky may have proved the point.

"A Dramatically Different Way to Look at the World' "You'll see more clearly in sunlight and shade ... with SOLARMATIC

WATCH HOW THESE WRAPAROUND SUNGLASSES' LENSES AUTOMATICALLY BRIGHTEN TO HELP YOU SEE THROUGH FOG AND HAZE! THEN WATCH THEM AUTOMATICALLY DARKEN TO CONQUER BLAZING SUN AND BLINDING SNOW! SEE AND ENJOY EVERYTHING IN A BEAUTIFUL EXCITING NEW LIGHT!

Our amazing new Solarmatic Wraparound Sunglasses are the complete year-round dawn-to-dusk outdoor glasses -to be worn in all kinds of weather, from bright sunlight to deep shade and gloomy fog! From the moment you put them on you'll be in a position to see the world around you focused more beautifully—with uninterrupted clarity!

How They Work.
These revolutionary sunglasses automatically adjust to sun or shade; lenses actually change color to deal with changes in light intensity! In bright, glaring sun, the lenses darken to screeo out strong rays and protect your eyes . . . then lighten the moment a cloud or shadow comes along, to improve your visibility!

A Dramatic Breakthrough for Salety.
With our Solarmatic glasses, you no longer "drive blind", every time you go from sun to shade, until your eyes adjust. These lenses do the adjusting for you, faster than your eyes ever could on their own! So you needn't take your hand off the wheel to flip your glasses up or down, every time you go ioto an underpass, or from snow to clouds or raio to snow or fog. And even the scenery becomes more beautiful, as you see it clear and colorful, without glare or eyestrain!

Enjoy Sports Activities More! Golfers can play more easily in changing weather, with visibility unaffected by sun or haze. It's easier to follow the ball, spot tendencies to book or slice. Balls that end up in the rough are more easily located. You can spot pins at a greater distance, and the course will have fewer mysteries

The Versatile Wraparounds.
Solarmatic wraparounds, are convenient for wearing alone, or over your present prescription eyeglasses. They are so light (weigh about 1 oz.) you'll bardly know you have them on. Their orange-amber lenses are impact-resistant, for added safety. You'll find them the most practical, most wearable sunglasses you've ever owned! And they're yours for only $4.99 a pair!

BUENOS AIRES, March 5

The Argentine peso was devalued nearly 70 percent and a 180-day "truce" in wage and price increases was announced tonight as part of an "emergency plan" against inflation and foreign debt.

Minister of Economy Emilio Mondelli announced the plan over national television as a necessary measure to save the government of President Isabel Martinez de Perón from a military overthrow.

"We know the sacrifice this plan means for the neonle but."

It is foreign to the truck to be worthy and creditors have insisting the decision to adopt the money. The amount of money "emergency plan" for several in circulation has doubled in plan means for tha people, but if we don't do it, others will, and not be precisely for the benefit of the workers," Mr. Mondelli said.

He announced a 12 percent wage increase, effective March I, for some workers, but he called for no further increases for 180 days. Prices have risen increases increases and.

Price Controls Planned

Strong measures to control prices of essential consumer goods will be adopted, Mr. Mondelli said, and he called on businessmen to accept sacrifices of profits for 180 days as part.

SAVE $99.46 THE CASE

YES! YOU SAVE $99.16! The prize-winning, dramulically great RENE LALOU 1969 Champagne of G. H. Mumm, sold throughout the U.S. only last week for $270.16 the case. It friehed approximately the same price, and well worth it, as such found Chompagnes as Dom Perignon, Roedecer Cristal, and Taitinger Blant de Blanes.

RLIND TASTINGS which we attended in Manaco during February produced the coldence. RENE LALOU 1969 was chosen as the lest Champagne submitted to a group of wine experts. If you hay a bottle, you will surely come back for a case of this remarkable wine which is beautifully presented in its handsome traditional 19th century bottle.

QUANTITY IS LIMITED and the price is truly adoubling — only $15.89 the bottle. $172.78 the case. First come, first served.

END-OF-BIN-SALE continues

END-OF-BIN SALE fluorishes in London and we have brought the custom to America. It simply means when certain wines are running out, we sell the remainder at wholesale or below wholesale. OUR BARRELS ARE FULL this weekend. Come early and you will pull out many happy surprises.

JOYOUS JEROBOAMS

WHAT IS A JEROBOAM? It is a giant bottle which holds the equal of four regular bottles, thus imparting to the wice contents looger life, slower materation, and drama when served. CHATEAU GREYSAC 1970, a superb Medue of great vintage year, was proodly produced by George Hereil, Chairman of Chrysler-Europe. These larger bottles were for M. Hereil's own pleasure and for the otembers of the board of Chrysler, Happily, we personded this presigious vignerou to ship as about 100 Jeroboams. We offer them, while they last, in appreciative wice lovers for only $16.95 the Jeroboam.

CLIFTON FADIMAN and SAM AARON Comment on THE JOYS OF THE WINE

Harry N. Abrama, distinguished art book publisher, persuaded us both to accept the challenge of writing an encyclopedic volome titled THE JOYS OF WINE. We worked long, bard, but joyously. In our professional lives, there have been few undertakings that have given as greater satisfaction. The windom of Harry N. Abrams was confirmed when he advised us only last week that 50,000 copies were

MEDOC and ST. EMILION

NATILANIEL JOHNSTON is among the most reliable, informed and honest Bordeaux wine merchants. His Bordeaux wines have long been the standards by which others are judged. During the great 1970 vintage, his MEDOC and ST. EMILION reached exalted heights and have only recently achieved sufficient mainrity to be enjoyed for current drinking. Both of these sold for well over $1 the bottle during the last few mouths. We uffer you the choice of MEDOC 1970 and ST. EMILION 1970 at only $2.39 the bottle. $28.90 the case.

Reported Exchanges Between the U.S. Secretary of State and Middle East Leach was the second to the New York Times was find the passes, but of the Following are excerpts from spring issue of the quarterly magazine Foreign Policy as verbatim conversations held by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger with the late King Faisal of Saudi Arabia in Riyadh in November 1973 and with Israeli officials in March 1975. Mr. Kissinger said today that the material appeared to be based on memorandums of conversa-tions, but denied that the text was a verbatim tran-

Kissinger With Faisal

KISSINGER: I recall Your Majesty's visit to the United States early during President Nixon's administration, wheo Your Majesty pointed out to the president some of the dangers in the Middle East. Many of Your Majesty's prophecies have come true. I wish to explain our actions in the war of last month. Your Majesty may not ap-prove, but he must know why we acted as we did. We were motivated by a desire to prevent an increase of Communist influence, and when the Soviets began to send in arms we had to react.

FAISAL: Thank you for your explanation. I wish to remind you of what I said to President Nixon and to Secretary Rogers. It is essential to press Israel to withdraw from occupied territory. As you know, the Communists want the situation to remain critical. The United States used to stand up against ag-gression—you, did that in World War II and in 1956 during the Suez war. If the United States had dooe the same after 1967 we would not have witnessed this de-terioration. I speak as a friend, and I want you to know how painful it is for ma to take steps which injure me to take steps which injure our friendship. . . Israel is advancing Communist objec-tives. It is unfortunate that amoogst those of the Jewish faith there are those who embrace Zionism. Before the Jewish state was established, there existed nothing to harm good relations between Arabs and Jews. There were many Jews in Arab countries. When the Jews were persecuted in Spain, Arabs protected them. Wheo the Romans drove the Jews out, Arabs protected them. At Yalta, it was Stalin who said there had to be a Jewish state. It is oecessary to establish in Palestine a mixed Jewish-Moslem state. Most of the immigration to Israel is from the Soviet Uolon, and they want to es-tablish a Communist base right to the Middle East, Communists have no faith.

They doo't believe in God. KISSINGER: Your Majesty, our problem oow is bow to proceed from the present situation-which we know is intolerable—to geouine peace.
FAISAL: That's easy, Make

Israel withdraw. KISSINGER: 1 agree that there must be Israell withdrawals, but this is a complicated problem for the United States—and oot just a for-eign policy problem. We have decided to make a major effort to achieve a settlement. We've made a beginning in Egypt, and we've agreed with President Sadat to convene a peace conference. . . Your Majesty will see that in the coming months we'll make a major effort to achieve progres FAISAL: I hope it will only take weeks. KISSINGER: Well, that raises the question of Your Majesty's oil embargo. We understand the emotions that led to the embargo. FAISAL: That is why you the embargo. It was very painful for me to have been forced to take this action against our American friends. KISSINGER: Your Majes-ty's decision had a serious effect, coming as it did from an old frieod. FAISAL: That's why I've suffered even more than you

KISSINGER: But now we KISSINGER: But now we face a new situation. Those who oppose peace seek to portray the Arabs as hostile to the United States. They are trying to turn opinion against our peace efforts. It will be difficult for us to go ahead if we face a continuing oil embargo. Wa can absorb the economic impact of the embargo, but the psychological impact worries me. I'd ical impact worries me. I'd like to suggest that Your Majesty take steps to limit the application of the embargo.

FAISAL: I should like to rescind it immediately. I, too, am in a difficult position. It would be easier if the United States would announce that Israel must withdraw and permit the Palestinians to return to their homes.

KISSINGER: Such a dramatic announcement would produce very strong reac-tioos. We must move step by step. I should like to urge Your Majesty to reflect. . . .

FAISAL: Our predicament is the other side of the coin. The Communists are accusing some Arabs of bowing to American pressure. To those who accuse you of bowing to Arab pressure, you can reply that the only reason the Arabs are doing this is because you support the en-emy of the Arabs.

KISSINGER: Your Majesty, it doesn't work that way in the United States. Our best argument is not to say that we're anti-Israeli or proArab, but that we want peace in the Middle East and that we're pursuing the interests of the United States. If we try to put it oo the basis of the merits of the Arab-Israeli dispute, there will aways be more people defending Israel than the Arab side. So we have to put it in terms of American oational interests.

Allon Gives Position

ALLON: We'd still like to negotiate an ioterim or over-all agreement, but not on the basis of an ultimatum from the other side.

KISSINGER: There was oo ultimatum. In the absence of oew Israeli ideas, we re-ceived oo new Egyptian ideas. We have oo illusions. The Arab leaders who banked on the United States will be discredited. Step-by-step has been throttled, first for Jor-dan then for Egypt. We're losdan, then for Egypt. We're los-ing control. There will be more emphasis oo the Palestiolans. and there will be a linkage between moves in the Sinai yesterday. and on Golan. The Soviets will step back onto the stage. The United States is losing control over events, and we'd all better adjust ourselves to that reality. The Europeans will have to accelerate their relations with the Arabs. If the interim agreement in 1971 had succeeded there would have been no war in October 1973. The same process is at work here. We just don't have a strategy for the situ-atioo ahead. Our past strat-egy was worked out carefully, and now we don't know what to do. There will be pressures to drive a wedge between Israel and the United States, not because we want key, Portugal, in a whole range of things. Don't mis-understand me. I'm analyzing this situation with friends. One reason I and my colleagues are so exasperated is that we see a friend damaging himself for reasons which will seem trivial five years from now-like 700 Egyptian soldiers across the canal in 1971. I don't see bow there can be another American initiative in the ocar future. We may have to go to Geneva for a multilateral effort with the Soviets-something which for five years we've felt did not offer the best bope for

SEOUL, South Korea, March South Korean security officials continued their investigation yesterday of a group of dissidents who criticized the Government last Monday and called on President Park Chung Hee to step down.

Of 17 persons understood to have been arrested so far, one, Yun Po Sun, was said to have been freed.

But another prominent critic of the Government, Chyung Yil Hyung, was taken into cus-tody. She is the wife of former Foreign Minister Chyung Yil Hyung. Mrs. Chyung, wbo was the country's first woman Iswyer, won a "world peace through justice' 'award in 1971 from the International Congress of Jur-ists, of which she is a member.

The latest series of arrests was prompted by a statement signed by 12 of South Korea's leading opposition figures this week criticizing what they termed President Park's "dicta-

The statement called for suspension of emergency meas-ures, freedom for all political prisoners and restoration of ull democracy.

Uoder the emergency decree of las May, all anti-government acts, including criticisms of the President and the Constitution, are outlawed. Violations are punishable by a minimum of a year io jail.

Two New Disturbances Break Out in Lebanon

Special to The New York Times BEIRUT, March 5 — As Palestinian and Lebanese troops took up new policing doties in Beirut today, disturbances were reported in two areas following a chain of violet incidents

The unrest lo the Akkar area north of Beirut appeared to involve dissident Moslem and Christian soldiers, and it under-scored the problem of deserters plaguing Lebanoo's unsettled political situation six weeks after a Syrian-negotiated cease-

The secood site of disturbances was an army garrison oear the Christian town of unive.

But that won't be so now.
ALLON: The Egyptians

KISSINGER: An agreement would have enabled the Unit-ed States to remain in con-trol of the diplomatic process. Compared to that, the loca-tion of the line eight kilometers one way or the other frankly does not seem very important. And you got all the military elements of nonbelligereocy. You got the —President Ford proposed bere today that Congress more than double, to $150,000, the amount of an individual'a estate that is exempted from Federal inheritance taxes. The exemption is now $60,000.

SPRINGFIELD Ill., March 5

The President outlined the proposal in a campaign trip across the central Illinois farm belt in search of support for his candidacy, in the state's March 16 Republican Presidentiap primary.

He told 400 members of farm organizations at a forum here that the estate tax change, comhined with an Administration plan, announced earlier, to defer payment of inheritance taxes on farm lands for up to 25 years, would help end "forced liquidation" of family farms.

Sifting Through Garbage For Clues on American Life

TUCSON, Ariz., March 5—As far as Dr. William L. Rathie and his 60 student volunteers at the University of Arizona are concerned, you are what you throw away.

Six days a week Dr. Rathje, a 30-year-old associate professor of anthropology, and the students meet at the city dump, where they sift through 38 bags of garbage set aside for them each week by city sanita-

Wearing surgical gowns, face masks and rubber gloves, the re-searchers sort it all out—paper goods here, cans and bottles there, table scraps, banana peels and the like in another place.

Anything that would identify the source of the refuse—letters, bills, envelopes—is separated and discarded. The object is not to gather intelligence, but to determine consumption habits of various income groups.

They work in a decidedly unpretentious laboratory-a 25-by-30-foot metal-roofed area stuck behind the neat rows of huge white dump trucks. There are makesbift tables, each surrounded by wbite-jacketed volunteers. They open each tagged plastic bag with care and remove its contents piece by piece.
"Wilson, what do marsbmallows come under?"

"Candy."
Wilson tis Wilson Hughes, project straw boss. He is here six days a week, supervising groups of volunteers. Fridays are especially good days-more volunteers show up. Each volunteer has a plastic-covered code card. Each food and trash item has an assigned number. On clipboards, the students record each item contained in their bag, by code stale bread are kept inside.

Judy Colvocoresses, Carolyn Anderson and Becky Simmons are working at one table. Miss Colvocoresses is majoring in anthropology, Miss Anderson in dietetics and Miss Simmons in chemistry.

"Yeah, I know." Miss Simmons said. "People always look at me like that when I say chemistry. I like this because it's so different from chemistry and I've learned so much about people's consumption patterns.'

It's kind of fun and different to do," Miss Anderson added, "and it gets me away from the campus." No Background Interest

Were any of them particularly noted for their eagerness to take out the garbage at home? "No" and "No way" and "Yuk." Nor are they any more eager these days less, in fact. "It does make you more conscious of what you throw away, and how you throw it away." Miss Anderson said. "I wouldn't want anybody going through my garbage."

ill dedicate the garbage-study area with a champagne christening. "But I want to wait until we get our garbage T-shirts in for this year." Dr. Rathje said.

What the students are doing is not exactly new methodology to anthro-pologists and archeologists. They have been examining the discards of ancient cultures for years to determine how the people lived. It was that practice, in fact, that led two of Dr. Rathje's students to wonder in 1971 whether they could test a classic stereotype—that Mexican-Americans drank less milk, took fewer vitamins and provided their children with less that is educational than the more affluent "Anglo" middle

Two Areas Checked

The professor and his two stu-dents did their limited study by tak-ing sample garbage from poor Mexi-can-American neighborhoods and middle-class Anglo areas and com-pariog contents. What they found shattered the stereotypes. Mexican-Americans drank as much milk or more, took more vitamins and bought more educational toys for their children than the across-town families.

Since then the garbage project has become an annual thing, involving not only anthropology students taking part for credit, but also stu-dents in medicine, sociology, home economics and psychology—and a scattering who, as one young stu-dent put it, find it relaxing. The project has gained national academic recognition, the attention of the Department of Agriculture and the interest of marketing analysis concerns. This year it is operating under two foundation grants totaling $23,000, with much of its expenses paid by the university.

The fourth project year is now under way; statistical analysis of the third is still in the computers but some general observations already

Projected from the 1,200 families of the survey area, which covers about a quarter of the city's geograpby and an income range from dirt-poor to upper-middle, Tucson's 400,000 people last year threw away more than 10,000 tons of edible food valued at $10 million to $12 million. That includes more than a half-million dollars worth of beef, well over $1 million in vegetables and $750,000 worth of pastries. More Findings

They discarded enough aluminum cans to earn them about $300,000 at recycling plants and thousands of dollars more in recyclable paper.

The poor ate a lot less meat and other protein foods as inflation increased in 1975. All classes bought less beer last year than they did the year before when beer consumption went up sharply. Dr. Rathje said that people reacted to the sugar shortage of 1975 the same way they did to the beef shortage of 1974-they bought more and wasted more.

According to the Rathje research, the dogs in town would be well fed if they had access to the meat thrown out of the city's restaurants. That way, expensive pet-food con-tainers would perhaps not be the fourth most common item in trash bags, right behind meat, bread and regetables. And the poor seem to discard more newspapers than the Middle-income families waste far study found. They either lack the time or the knowledge to reuse leftovers and stale pastries. The poor also huy fewer pre-prepared and frozen foods probably because they lack refrigeration facilities. Middleincome families also buy more giant-economy-size packages than the poor.

All sorts of arcillary projects have spun off the main garbage-sifting operation. One sociology student determined that beer consumption went up when there was a full moon, Another advanced the theory that beer drinkers consumed more over-thecounter drugs, such as aspirin, than liquor drinkers did.

An examination of the refuse thrown out by an elementary school showed that its cafeteria was obviously continuously serving food that the pupils patently disliked such as cole slaw. The project has recom-mended to the Agriculture Department's school-lunch program that school cafeterias provide choices in daily menus to cut down on waste.

The department is interested.

Nor could mothers be heartened by the school survey. Large numbers of homemade sandwiches were found, many still wrapped.

There is a definite camaraderie in sorting garbage for science, Dr. sorting garbage for science, Dr. Rathie reports. The student volunteers have formed softball, basketball and volleyball teams and hold championship playoffs with municipal aanitation employes every year. A Halloween party tast year invited guests to "coma aa your favorite piece of garbage." They did: an olive, a broken doll, a bag of fertilizer. Dr. Rathie wants to expand the

When Anxious Over Decoratin Eight Heads Are Better Than On

The five women sat on the floor earnestly discussing their problems, with occa-sional interruptions and suggestions from the leader. Group therapy? No, group

"People have hang-ups when they decorate," said Julia Hyman, the leader and a professional decorator, "I bad begun to realize that decorating is not just putting some furniture together, it's a whole emotional thing that requires some guidance

She hit on the group idea two years ago when it oc-curred to her that in a group women are more and to talk freely about those things that involve the nerve endings. And the group—all smateurs—not only act as an instant source of ideas, but also as morale boosters.

"The group is so supportive," said Adriane Berg, in whose apartment the women were meeting that night. "And you're in your own so they can look at everything and tell you things. You can't really de-scribe these things to somebody, they have to be able to see it."

Hostess Client Concept

Each week the class meets in a different member's bome. The hostess for the evening has generally thought out what she wants to bave discussed, and is then the "client" for the

"I try to get the group to ask questions I would ask myself," said Mrs. Hyman. "And I encourage them to fantasize.

The length of the course depends on bow many peo-ple there are in it (never more than eight, and more than half the people in this particular group are second-time-arounders). Each woman gets visited at least once. The cost depends on the number of meetings.

"It averages out to about S7 a person for each meeting," Mrs. Hyman said, Miss Berg knew exactly what was bothering her on a recent evening when she welcomed the group to the high-rise condominium she shares with ber husband, Stuart Bochner (she uses her maiden name). She bad come a long way, she explaned, since she began the course with the group last fall, and had already half-furnished the living room in acres of white.

Now the problem was the master bedroom and dressing room. In spite of the fact that the apartment includes a well-closeted entry bail: a large, many-windowed, L-shaped living room, a goodsized kitchen with plenty of space for dining, and an un-used second bedroom (the couple does not have children), "things bave worked out so that we do all our living in this one room," Miss Berg explained to the group, which was seated in the master bedroom.

"We eat, sleep, watch TV, read, listen to stereo, do our crafts and even entertain small numbers of people in this room," she said. So, how does one get all those activities accommodated in one room not much more than about 10 by 20 feet? Mental Visions

Mrs. Hyman believes in thinking big, and then scaling down to reality after the problems have been pinpointed. So the group began—men-tally—to knock down walls, particularly the one between the virtually unused dressing room and the bedroom; take out the closets and build more efficient ones; move the furniture around, and install the big. free-standing television set in a wall recess. There was no lack of ideas. But somehow, there was Miss Berg, sitting and shaking her head. Many of the ideas were good, she indicated. But there was still something lacking that would bring the whole thing together. What was it? "Fantasize," said Mrs. Hyman. "There you are, naked with a checkbook. You can bave whatever you want. What would it be?" Miss Berg's large eyes lit up. Now that was clearly no

"And where would you put the television?" asked

Mrs. Hyman. "That's very simple," said Miss Berg. "You could en-close it with a door, and have bookcases on either side that would hold all my leather-hound books and my old maps."

"But no table and chairs," Mr. Bochner added (since the problem of eating in the room still had to be attended to). "Maybe a counter near the fireplace." He paused for the moment. "But if the fire-place doesn't do anything," he added, "you might as well have a wishing well in here." It was quickly agreed that there was no way to actually have a real fireplace in the middle of a room on the second floor of a very tall building with no fines. And it finally became clear, after a good, deal more battingaround of ideas, that what Miss Berg felt the room really lacked was a focal point.

By the time the group left, almost four bours after it bad arrived, a great deal had been established.

No Fireplace There wasn't going to be fireplace, of course, but there was going to be a big comfortable sofa about where the wall of the dressing room now stood. There would be some sort of library table in back of it for dining. There would be books, and the recessed TV set along one wall, with a queen-size bed opposite, near the win-

The case of "Little Bir-gitte," as it is called here, has stirred a major dispute in Denmark and aroused widespread anger against the Government. Moreover it has ahed light on a controversial practice that has emerged with the advent of Denmark's bighly centralized welfare system, the power of officials to remove children from their homes, with-Out court order or official

"People who are three months out of university make a judgment about parents and the judgment is irreversible. Every week I get parents calling me, crying, crying, crying, wanting their children back.

"And the children, living in public institutions, nave little chance in later life. Many of them end up in mental hospitals or prisons. Denmark's 273 municipal child welfare hoards are empowered to place a child in an institution on the advice of a welfare worker, According to Dr. Graungaard the decision of the welfare hoard can be appealed to a Social Appeals Board, but the initial decision is rarely reversed. A Personal Contact

As a last resort, parents can go to the Appeals Court and finally the Supreme Court, but only with permis-sion of the Mioistry of Jus-tice. Currently the Government has enacted legislation to merge the child welfare boards with the appeals unit, but critics say that the essential "abuse of authority" maios intact and an overhaul of the system is crucial.

Dr. Graungaard's involvement with child welfare au-thorities began in 1956, when she returned to Copenhagen for a Christmas holiday while studying medicine in Sweden. A woman phoned her and pleaded for help because authorities had taken away ber child.

"I did not understand this problem but I said I would help her," Dr. Graungaard said. "I tried to reach her after Christmas Day out I couldn't. On New Year's we found her. She had taken her life."

1971 BORDEAUX ON SALÉ For a period of time this ooble vintage has been overlooked because of the universal praise received by the 1970's. Although the quantity in oo way approaches the 70' vintage - the quality does and the smaller yield has resulted in a greater concentration of flavor. Peter Sichel, ooted wine authority and author compared the two vintages in a receor vintage report - be states, "we disagree with those; who say the 71's should he drunk before 1970's. They? appear lighter because they have less fruit but they have a length which signifies long life and exceptional elegance. A very good year indeed, and the top Chateaux will certainly still be full of life in the late 1980's." He further states, "those who enjoy splitting bairs will be able to compare the two vintages for years to come, like 1928 and 1929's." High praise indeed-here is a chance to round out excellent viotage - extremely more successful than the following 72's, 73's and 74's at prices SALE

At a recent dinner we shared with noted wine authority, Alexis Lichine, discussed the problems of this vintage. His conclusions were that the small amount of good wine produced will be very expensive and the inexpensive Beaujolais and Rhones will be of questionable quality. These facts are bound to inflate the prices of the better preceding vintages and we believe now is the time to invest in these good popular wines of the Beaujolais and Rhone areas before these price levels reach New York. CORTEZ, Colo., March 1-"Is any sick among you? Let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him . and the prayer of the faith shall save the sick . . . " Peter, 1:14.

There have been sick, fa-tally sick children, among the several hundred members of the Church of the First Born in this small agricultur-al town in soothwest Colorado. But, in accordance with their interpretation of the Scriptures, the congregation prays instead of seeking medical help.

A few weeks ago, a 3-year-old boy died of diphtheria, an acutely contagious bac-terial disease of the respiratory tract. Sixteen months ago his 4-year-old cousin died of the same disease. Yet. the brethren of the church which claims loose affiliation with thousands of other members in assemblies across the country, have refused immunization, as they always have. They agreed to voluntary quarantine instead.

The two diptheria out-breaks here apparently are the worst examples since October 1972 when 11 pupils at a Christian Science preparatory school in Greenwich, were left paralyzed. Like them, the 200 or so First Born children are not immunized against polic or any other disease.

"There aren't going to be too many people here to-day," said the Rev. John Carver, pastor of the Church of the First Born, as about 50 persons filed into the bare cinder-block church on an unpaved road south of town. "We've got a lot of town. "We've got a measles going around."

Many of the First Born children have not been to public school recently, either because of measles or be-cause of the quarantine their parents accepted after they refused to be immunized last month by state health offi-cials against diphtheria and other "baby diseases."

According to Dr. Stanley
W. Ferguson, who investigated the Cortez outhreaks, the parents did allow physicians to take throat cultures from about 130 children to see whether they were car-riers. Two children from one family who showed positive diphtheria cultures were treated with antibiotics.

Mr. Carver, 76 years old, who used to be a Kansas railroad station clerk explained that the church per-

One was Hilda Fish, 30, who has nine children. "The faith gives me the choice whether to turn to man or turn to God," she said, cra-dling one child in her arms. "If my children get sick, it's for a purpose."

One of her babies died of stomach flu, another of pneumonia. "It doesn't shake my faith. God's still God," she said, adding, "Maybe it was a blessing. Life isn't everything and everyone has to die."

Mrs. Fish's husband, who was not at the service, does not hold ber beliefs. When their six-week-old son was stricken with appendicitis in California, the father had him brought to a hospital. The boy recovered.

LIVONIA, Michigan, March 5 (UPI)-When six machine gun-carrying bandits took a money oag from a Livonia branch of the Michigan National Bank yesterday, an electronic triggering device donsed them in red dye, Livenia Police Chief Robert Turner said. They dropped the money bag and fled.

Chief Turner said two men arrested in Detroit several hours later were possible suspects. At least one man reportedly was carrying a machine gun, he said.

Miss Hamill Leading in Title Skate

GOTEBORG. March 5 (UPI)-The only hope for a United States gold medal in the world figure skating championships lies with Dorothy Hamil, 19 years old, the Olympic's champion, who moved up to first place today after winning the women's short program with an almost perfect performance that earned her 87.36 points and 14.5 ordinals.

Despite two minor errors when doing a double axel and a flying sit spin, Miss Hamill's performance was good enough to move her to the top. She can wrap up the title in tomorrow's free-style skating.

After the short program, Diame Deleeuw, an Ameri-can girl competing for the Netherlands because of ber parents' heritage, moved up to second place with 86.44 points and 21.5 ordinals, followed by Isabel de Navarre of West Germany and Christine Errath, 19, of East Ger-

Miss Hamili received mos-Miss Hamili received mos-tily 5.8's for technical ment and near-perfect marks of 5.9's from four of the mine judges for the artistic im-pression.

Lyudmila Pakhomova and Aleksandr Gorshkov of the Soviet Union regained their world ice dancing title with a performance that earned them a near-perfect set of marks from the judges.

The finish was exactly the same as at the Innsbruck Olympics last month, with the defending champions, Irinia Moiseyeva and Andrei Minenkov of the Soviet Union, fighting a close battle with Colleen O'Connor and Jim Millns of Colorado Springs in winning the silver medal ahead of the American pair.

The Pakhomova-Gorshkov team, skating before a near-sellout crowd of 12,000 pro-duced a fault-free four min-utes of dancing and gained seven perfect 6.0 marks from the oioe judges for artistic merit—the Polish and American judges awarded them S.9's. Three judges also awarded them perfect marks for technical performance.

Kermit Zarley protecting himself from the rain as he lines up a putt on the 14th hole in the Citrus Open at Orlando, Fla. He shot a 66 during the second round yesterday.

Zarley Leads Golf by 2 Shots

BY JOHN S. KADOSTA

Special to The New York Times ORLANDO, Fla., March 5-Kermit Zarley, who returned to golf competition in January after a chancy operation to fuse discs in the vertebrae nf his neck, zoomed past the opposition today and took the lead in the second round of the Florida Citrus open.

Zarley, a 34-year-old Tex-an, shot 66 this afternoon; six strokes under par for the pine-framed Rio Pinar Country Club. With yesterday's 67, Zarley had a 36-bole aggregate of 133, or 11 under par.

A shower forced the suspension of play for 20 minutes, and ooe effect was to break Zarley's momentum. He had completed 14 holes when the rain started. After resuming play he pushed two drives into the pines, one of them costing him a bogey.

 Zarley started today in a four-way tie for fourth place, two shots behind Mark Hayes and Mike Hill. With today's round he established a two-stroke lead over Hayes and Gay Brewer, whose 135 put them at nine under par. Hayes shot 70 today and Brewer, a 20-year veteran of day's 66 with a 69.

John Mahaffey, runner-up in last year's United States Open, scored a fine 67, partly on the strength of a driver be seems to have found at the end of a rainbow. Mahaffey bas been experimenting with drivers, without suc-cess, since last fall, but now he is using one made for him by Tom Weiskopf.

You could make up some dandy foursomes from the players who were eliminated io tonight's 36-hole cut at 144. Among them were Lee Trevino, the defender, Arnold Palmer, the 1971 winoer; Tom Weiskopf and Gene Lit-

Zarley is in fine fettle because of wbat he calls his "Resurrection Neck" and because he likes this tour-

"I like this course and this town," Zarley said, "and that has a lot to do with bow well

Zarley started today's round from the 10th tee, and he did not miss a green until No. 7, the 16th of his round. where he also missed the fairway for the first time. After routine pars on 10,

He rolled in a 10-foot putt for a birdie on the 13th and a 25-fcoter, on the 14th. A poor wedge shot on the par-5 15th made a birdie impos-sible, but then he ran in a string of three in a row with putts of 10, 8 and 15 feet.

On the front nine Zarley --:an eight-foot putt, but then he hit his first bad drive on the seventh, a par of 573 yards. Zarley pushed his drive into the trees, and he was so hampered by one tree that be was convinced he would break his 7-iron in his attempt to get out to the feir-way. He did reach the fairway, but his third shot sailed beyond the green. He finally reached the putting surface in four, but he missed the eight-foot putt for par.

Oo No. 9, the 18th of his round he was tired from the long day and the pressure, and again, he pushed his tee shot into the pines. From there be got a 7-iron to the front edge and then chipped down for a "gimme ' putt and a saved par.

The 'City Kid' from the Virgin Islands

Ron Turcotte indicating the number of races he won at Aqueduct after guiding Wingaway bome in ninth.

In the gaudiest college basketball game between two local teams since shaving without a raznr was declared improper by the District Attorney's office 25 years ago. unbeaten Rutgers opposes unawed St. John's at Madison Square Garden today for the Eastern College Athletic Conference Metropolitan championship, a neighborhood prelude to the N.C.A.A. tournament. All the city kids will be showing how they play what is known as the city game. But the outcome might be decided by a 6-foot-4-inch St.
Juan's guard, Glen Williams Jr., from a city known more for bay rum than basketball. Sports

on St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, but The Times he leads the Redman in scoring with an average of 14.5 points. With 25 points against St. Peter's in the Redmen's 75-67 victory in Thursday night's semifinal, the bamboo-slim junior now has 1.024 points. Six more and he will aurpass Harry Boykoff, a towering center three decades ago, among the top St. John's career scorers. But the Harry that Glen Williams is usually compared to is Belafonte; he talks with the lift of the Caribbean, prefers yellowtail fish to steak and listens to Reggae music, a mixture of rock and calypso. His team-mates call him "Reggae" but be grew up playing basketball sound of a basketball bouncing on a playground court. "The court was so close I could hear the ball bouncing when I woke up in the morning," he says. "I think it woke to the sound of the same beat that the city kids do. The

'All Day, All Night'

He was living in the Paul M. Payson housing project. He had mostly played baseball until he broke his right

"I was 11 then, and I began playing basketball instead. On a dirt court first, then on the asphalt court at our project. There were only two nutdoor courts on the island, one asphalt and one concrete. But they were lighted. I would get up at 6 in the murning and play until noon, then go to the beach and swim until 4, and by then, with the sun going down, everybody was at the courts and I would play until 10, 11 at night. Sometimes we would go to a party, then come back at 4 in the morning and turn onthe lights and play some more. Ynu play all day, all night."
At the age of 15, he was averaging 39 points a game in the 13-to-16 age group league. "They put me on the national team that played in the Central American tournament in Panama," he said, "The other players were nider, some of them men. I didn't start the first two games, but I started after that, and we finished behind Puerto Rico, Mexico, Panama and Cuba."

In high school his coach was Arthur Jamison, a North Carolinian who arranged for him to transfer to Laurinburg

"I didn't like to go to school, but Mr. Jamison would come to my brane and get me in the morning and walk me to school, like a little kid. We played a few games indoors, but mostly we played outdoors. Everybody always asks about the wind. There is no wind in St. Thomas, only gentle breezes. The games were packed with people all around the court, chattering all the time. They stand on the baseline. You cannot drive the baseline, You cannot gn out of bounds. But when I went to Laurinburg, at first I didn't like it. I went with a friend of mine, Robert Gums, and be couldn't take it. He didn't like the food, he didn't like the classes. It was a big transition. He went bome. called my father and asked to come bome, too, and he told me, 'All right, come bome Christmas' and this was in September, but when the basketball season started, I liked it. I averaged 30 points my first year there, 28 my second. I could have gone to any of the Atlantic Coast Cooference

Playing for Laurinburg Prep in a preliminary to a New York Nets' game at Nassau Coliseum, he was noticed by Lou Caroesecca, then in his final season as the Nets'

"At the time I wasn't thinking about returning to St. John's," says Carnesecca, "but as it turned out., I was there when Glen arrived as a freshman. He was a find. And be must have had good coaching because he was a very sound player even as a freshman."

The Adjustments

Glen Williams had to adjust to what he calls "pattern basketball." He says, "I had to play defense to make the team." He also had to adjust to the environment of living in the big city."

"My father is still in St. Thomas as a customs ageot," he says. But my mother lives in the Bronx, with most of my 10 brothers and sisters. I live in Brooklyn with my cousins because there are too many people in the house with my mother-small ones, big ones.

He misses the warm weather on St. Thomas and the Caribbean fish delicacies

"Yellowtail and a fish called Old Wife, a flat fish this big." he says, bolding his hands nearly two feet apart. "Delicious, I wish I had some now. I miss the Reggae music too. Bob Morley and the Whalers, he is the biggest Reggae man in the world." Glen Williams is an athletic administration major who eventually hopes to return to St. Thomas as a coach.

There has been only one major league player, Alvin Mc-Bean, and the boxer, Emile Griffith, from St. Thomas, and now me. I would like to get a job in sports here. But if not, I will go home and coach. Teach the kids what I learn here. But first, this is the game, against Rutgers, this is the game. I wanted them to go through the season undefeated.

I want to be the team to beat 'em.'

"I'm very big there," be says. "I could run for mayor.

Greg Jones, above, and Phil Mahre, both of the United States, in action during giant sialom yesterday in Copper Mountain, Colo. Jones won the event; Mahre was second.

Although he did not receive the $200,000 salary that he had been aiming for, Pete Rose signed a contract with the Cincinnati Reds yesterday and said he was pleased

"I didn't get $200,000, but I did get a oice raise," Rose

"It's fair and I'm happy with it. I've only had one other pay raise bigger than this one and that was right after I was the National League's most valuable player in 1973." He was also most valuable player in the 1975 world series.

Rose said he was not unhappy to be paid less than Johnny Bench, who recently signed for a reported $200,-000. "It seems that the guy who hits all the home runs makes all the money, but I don't worry about that," be said. "Anyway, I'm the highest paid third baseman in baseball."

Rose may be happy with less than $200,000, but his teammate, Joe Morgan, says he will not settle for less than that figure.

Morgan, when told of Rose's signing, said: "If Pete agrees on a figure he really doesn't think is fair, that's bis business, I won't. Figures show that the last three years I've been the No. 1 offensive player in haseball. The Reds have those figures, too. I feel I have yet to reach my peak." haketbali tournament.
Virginia upset Maryland. 73-65, in the other semifinal before a crowd of 19,600 at the Capital Centre. Virginia, which had upset North Caro-lina State yesterday, plays North Carolina tomorrow for the conference title. Ford, an all-A.C.C. choice as a sophomore, sank seven of his shots in the first half, which ended with North Carolina abead, 43-34.

The Tar Heels, ranked No. 4 in the nation, led 16-14 when the 7-foot-1-inch Clemson center, Wayne (Tree) Rollins went to the bench with his third foul. North Carolina, with Ford contributing 6 points, stretch its advantage to 33-21 before Rollins returned, Waiter Davis scored 17 points for the Tar Heels, the A.C.C. regular-season champion, which drew a first-round hve in the tournament. Ford finished with 16 points and Mitch Kupchak had 13.

Howsam, president of the Reds, was one of those additions, and he clearly is the toughest-talking member of the committee. He has been cutspoken in his opinion of Miller and be is believed to have been behind the change in the mond of the talks earlier this week.

Monday's session produced some optimism among the members of the negotiating team-the six club officials don't sit in on the talks with the players' people—but by the time the negotiators met Wednesday, the situation had deteriorated.

It was believed that Howsam, perhaps not alone among the committee mem-bers who were in Florida, insisted that Gaherin, MacPhail and Charles (Chub) Feeney, president of the National president of the National League, get tougher with Mil-ler. They got tougher, and now Miller apparently has decided to get just as tough by withdrawing the players proposals. The owners' negotiators told Miller, at the conclusion of yesterday's session, that they would call him during the weekend to schedule another meeting after they had met with the Player Re-

Nothing is more difficult

nowadays than to paint a portrait of a legendary fig-

Aspects of American Realism. Grey Art Gallery and Study Ceoter, Washington Place: One of the unsung resources of New York University is the collection of the Sara Rnby Foundation, which is nn view at this moment in the Gray Art Gallary, just a yard or two to the southeast of Washington Square. The collection stands for a kind of taste that is now out of fashion—summations of society, for instance, like Hnnore Sharrer's "Tribute to-the American Working People" (1951) and Paul Cadmus's "Night in Bologna" (1958), in which an arche-typal G.I. stands in arche-typal inneliness while European womanhood has better things to do than answer to his call.

Whether fashlonable or not, a painting like Jack Levine's "Inauguration" (1956-58) stands for a specific minment in American history; and on its first outing in nearly 20 years the collec-tion is where it should bemidway between the Whitney uptown and the Whitney downtown. Through March Sylvia Mangold (Fischbach Gallery, 29 West 57th Street: Jasper Johns pre-empted the potential of the rule quite some time agn. But Sylvia Mangold has some elegant variations on the ways in which a ruler (supposedly one of the most exact things there are) can be pulled out of shape in the interests of perspective, and painted in such a way as to deny its own nature. Most of her pictures correspond to instructions penciled at the bottom of the canvas, and their mating of trompe l'oell with conceptual art is giving pleasure in a lot of penple. Through March 13.

John Taylor Arms (A.A.A. Gallery, 663 Fifth Avenue, at 52d Street): John Taylor Arms (1887-1953) was arguably the most distinguished of the American full-time etchers of the 1920's. Today that may sound like faint praise, but at the time those sedulnus needlemen were adulated. People just could nnt get over the fact that Arms would put in a total of 2,172 hours an a single plate (the townscape of Palencia in the A.A.A. show). He was a prodigious technician who could take a plate that measured % inch by % inch and turn but a townscape with figures that has to be magnified 10 times before we can really see what he was up to.

All this could be no more than freaky; but Arms's love for his subject matter comes through in even the most outrageous of his miniaturings. And when he was in France and spent week after week in the still unblemished cathedral towns of Normandy, he came home with plates that witness irreplaceably the look of townscapes that vanished forever during World War II. Anyone who prizes Henry James's "A Lit-tle Tour in France" as one of the best books of its kind will

Dance: Pilobolus Images

'Untitled' Opens Fare at Brooklyn Academy

BY CLIVE BARNES

The ways of destiny are mysterious. The Pilobolus Dance Theter bas existed, happily even triumphantly, for nearly five years. It has appeared around town, been praised in the United States and in Europe, Yet I had never seen it until last night at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Everyone had told me about the company, but the uncertain trajectory of our schedules had somebow never coincided. It was clearly my loss.

It is a company of four men and two women. The men are gymnastically inclined, and the women appear slightly ironical about it. Originally the group con-sisted simply of four menall Dartmouth graduates, amateurs fired by Terpsichore -but now that seems, to a johnny-coma-lately unthinkable. For so much of the company's bumor—and it is a group that appears to live on its wits as much as trade on its movements-is based on the differences of men and women and their progress through life and space. The four energetic men and the two watchful, but nifty. women, now look essential to the Pilobolus view of the world and its fauna.

Perhaps this view is most clearly expressed in the compeny's new work, which opened the program, and is called, disarmingly, "Un-titled." Tha choreography is by the company itself—most of their work is communaland its consists of two women, capable of almost limitless extension because they are carried on the backs of two men and their two tophatted suitors.

Dance metaphor thy name must be Pilobulus! for so' much of the dramatic action in "Untitled," all of it brilliantly expressed in movement, is concerned with vivid images of dance, crystalline little moments of expression coocerned here with a kind of Thurberlike view of the war between men and women.

The style of the program is remarkably constant, yet never boringly so. Despite the male/female perceptions, most of the company's danges concern the relationship of friendship rather than love. The technical essen e of the troupe is that the four rien are only partially trained as dancers (it seems to be a partiality jealously preserved) but are supery gymnasts. As but are supery gymnasts, held the reasons for our concern agility, even their lithe elegance, is endowed with a Dinitz said after the meeting.

Henie is a name seldom mentioned these days amid all the movie nostalgia. For that matter, the ice-skater's films don't often appear on television anymore. The Sky

Rink, that perennial midtown

baven for ice-cutters, tonight is featuring a musical "Salute to Sonja Henie" with a jazz-band performance, including a number of songs from the skater's movies.

Leading the music will be Joe Newman, with Don Rondo

and Sol Yaged on clarinet,

Bernie Privin, trumpet, and Mannie Thayler and Harry DeVito, trombones. The jazz package is being presented by Doc Winter, former leader of Glenn Miller's Army Air

Forces Military Band.
Skate-rental, checking and snack bar facilities will be available during the program, from 8 to 10 o'clock. Tickets are $5. The Sky Rink is in the 16th-finor penthouse at 450 West 33d Street, between Ninth and 10th Avenues.

FROM WAY BACK As its second American work this season saluting the Bi-centennial, the Bel Canto

Opera Company is staging the rarely presented "The King's Henchman" tunight and next Saturday at 7:30 P.M. and tomnrow and next Sunday at 3 P.M. With music by Deems Taylor and a libretto by Edna St. Vincent

Millay, the opera, a medieval romance set in Cornwall, opened here at the Metropolitan on Feb. 17, 1927. The reviewer for The New York Times called it "the most effactively and artistically wrought American opera that has reached the stage," but the work remained in the Metropolitan repertory only certain endearing amateurishness, from which derives much of their humor.

The tone of the dancing is unabashedly physical. Bodies catapult and aomersault, turn cartwheela and spin with gymnasium ease through a strange new world of dance. The company seems almost more like a team than a troupe, which is its particular charm, and more like a concept than a team that is its particular value.

There are very few groups that stop to question the kinetic values of dance, and tha Pilobus cooperative ap-pears to be one of those few. it suggests that movement can be as easily connected with movement as in a gymnasium—as with space. This is in conflict with the ideas of the dance class and all those theatrical cubes and kinetic parabolas. Interest-ingly, the spartan comedy of the Piloblus approach is constantly being lightly under-scored by the presence of the two women dancers, who certainly join in, but in a tellingly different style. The method can be seen to perfection in the program's final work, overlong but witty, "Monksbood's Farewell." It is the gusto of novely ob-served by the awareness of experience.

By VINCENT CANBY

Some good people, including Peter O'Toole and Richard Roundtree, the stars, and Jack Gold, the director, have entered into a collaboration that brings nut the worst in each of them. It's called "Man Friday" and it opened yesterday at Loews Astor Plaza and Tower East Thea-

"Man Friday," written hy Adrian Mitchell, is Daniel Defoe's "Rohlnson Crusoe" with a dupily raised con-sciousness—the story of the oce-great, resourceful, 18thcentury shipwreck survivur told from the point of view of his native manservant, Friday. In this version, Friday becomes a sort of exotic flower child who values fun. and sex-with-out-guilt, while poor old Crusoe is an uptight, meanspirited, self-righteous, Biblequoting higot.

The time is still the early 18th century, but the wit-lessness is strictly of the 1960's. While Crusoe (Mr. O'Toole) tries to teach Friday (Mr. Roundtree) the meaning of privete ownership, money, sin, work and sportsmanship, Friday, just as unsuccessfully, attempts to liberate Crusoe from his hang-ups. This reversal of roles might possibly have stimulated George Bernard Shaw to an interesting idea or two, hut it does nothing for Mr. Mitchell, whose

The movie, which was photographed prettily in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, seems to have been carefully aimed about two inches over the head of the carefully aimed about two inches over the head of the carefully aimed about two inches over the head of the carefully aimed about two inches over the head of the carefully aimed about two inches over the head of the carefully aimed about two inches over the head of the carefully aimed about two inches over the head of the carefully aimed about two inches over the head of the carefully aimed about two inches over the careful the carefu the heads of an audience of 8-year olds. There are some incidental songs in it that I can imagine being sung hetter by animated rabbits than by Mr. Roundtree. There is also a lot of smug discourse, the tedium of which is oc-casionally relieved by ludi-crous inspiration, as when Friday offers his body and his love to Crusoe when he finds his master flagellating himself for having had an

Mr. O'Toole looks and sounds right, and he might have made a fine Crusoe in a film of fewer confusions and pretensions. Mr. Round-tree, whose first "Shaft" film had a good deal of style, has a terrible time trying to mime a primitive man's saintliness. Mostly be chooses to look baffled. He wriokles his hrow, cocks his head to one side and assumes a quizzleal expression. The last actor to get away with this

Musical of 1968

By RICHARD EDER . The most theatrical, the most touching moment in the Equity Library Theater's re-vival of the 1968 musical "Maggle Flynn" comes in the intermission. To the tune of Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching," and with enormous glee, the actors march out and sing a ditty beginning "Fill, Fill, Fill Our Little Baskets."

· It iso't simply that they sing it with more verve and charm than they have managed up to that point. It's that for a moment they are able to lay down the great corpse of a musical they've been trundling about and strike a spark of life. The Equity Library Theater, which gives New York actors

a chance to show their stuff and has started a number of good ones on their profes-sional way is indeed short of funds. "Fill, Fill." had the useful immediacy of street singing: It sounded good and it made money. The baskets were quickly filled.

As for the performance, it has some good things in it. but mainly it's a failure. The chief trouble is the vehicle: It is more hopeful than sensi-ble to think most plays can he revived. Most can't. The mouth-to-mouth resuscitation giveo by the enthusiastic and, in some cases, talented company to "Maggie" hardly floats up a hiccup.

It was long nutdated wheo it was written. It bas the stock emotional formula of 1940'a and 50's musicals: back and forth between mawkish and manic. The writing is desperately tired, and though a few of the soogs bave eoergy, they don't have much else.

an orphanage for the children of runaway slaves. Maggie, the protagonist, is simul-taneously loved by a handsome Union colonel and her raffish husband, a clowo by trade, who left her but wants to come hack. There are complications, locluding the use of her basement by two Confederate spies and an anti-black riot by Maggie's Irish neighbors, who resent being drafted for the war.

Maggie is that familiar figderful Persoo. Played by Bette Gleno, she manages Nice, but oot Wonderful. She doesn't create the fuss she's supposed to. As her husband, Ross Petty is just the other way around—too noisy and exuberant. Yet as he wheels about in his clown role, he is always watching to see where he is going to land. Some of the minor actors do better. Nita Novy, Linda Kampley and Cathy Roskam all have good moments in multiple roles. The set, designed hy Richard Williams, uses a splendid device: three translucent panels that re-flect all kinds of light and moods and serve as doors and windows as well.

The staging though crowded at fust—some of the early choreography re-sembles a trade school breaking for luoch — improves. A fieal riot scene is a fine example of disciplined and understated action used to convey violence.

Bridge: Covering Honor With B

Covering honors with honors is a more complex subject than one might think, and there are times when the play that appears right is wrong and vice versa.

If West beld an entry fur his spades, in the form of the cluh ace or a guarded club queen, the con-tract was doomed. So South sumption that East held both missing club honors.

The gods of the game were: on the declarer's side in the club suit, and the contract was makable. With a little help from the opponeous, Roth emerged with an overtrick, greatly helping his match-poiot score.

Play of Ace Wrong The A-K of hearts were cashed and the clob jack was led from the dummy. East would have been wrong to play low, and he made the cormal play of the ace, but this turned out to be wrong, too. He shifted to a diamood, and Roth took his red-suit

This selective autobiography hy the other Nabokov is concerned only occasionally with ballat-it touches more upon social history—but it is written by a composer whose career can be identified with three cootroversial landmark ballets,

The most recent is George Balanchine's "Don Quixote," for which Nicolas Nahokov wrote a commissioned score that collects an annual quota of critical brickbats for its "Hollywood" fisvor. None-theless, "Don Quixote" remains a fixture of the New York City Ballet, which cele-brated its move to the New York State Theater with this full-length narrative work so startling to adherents of Mr. Balanchine's one-act plotless haltets.

In 1934, Mr. Nabokov (composer), Archibsld MacLeish (librettist) and Léontde Massine (choreographer) scooped Mr. Balanchine and Ruth Page by several months to create what the author calls "the first truly American hallet." This was "Union Pacific," whose Americana subject amid the Russian-French repertory of the Hurok-aponsored Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo caused a certaio sensatioo. "Union probably never deserved the lack of understanding that greeted it in 1928 with Serge Diaghilev's Ballets Russes io Europe. "Ode," also choreographed by Mr. Massine, was Mr. Nabokov's first ballet, and there is every reason to believe that with its lightshow projections by Pavel Tchelitchev, the ballet was merely ahead of its time. "Ode" was Mr. Nabokov's first claim to fame.

Serge Lifar bas given us a personal view of the Diaghilev company more than once, as has the respected British ballet historian, Cyril Beaumoot. Alexandre Bénois, the Russian painter and stage deeigner who introduced Diaghilev to ballet in the first place, wrote two sets of reminisceoces. Now Mr. Nabokov offers a sequet to his "Old Friends and New Music," published in 1951, part of which reappeara here in what he calls "this new and different context."

Pilotless Train

All the tortuous efforts to restore New York City to solvency will come unhinged unless the wage line is held in the crucial negotiations now limping along for a new contract covering the city's subway and bus em-

The pattern of 1976-78 wages and frioge benefits for police, fire and most other unionized municipal services will almost certainly be determined by these talks, conducted under the club of a possible April I strike. Yet the semi-autonomous Metropolitan Transportation Authority is still without clear guidelines from Governor Carey, Mayor Beame or the Emergency Fioancial Control Board on what kind of cootract it can sign.

The lack of such guidelines can prove disastrous. The gravity of the city's fiscal crisis and the impossibility of raising the 50-cent fare without wrecking the stricken metropolitan economy plainly rule out any immediate possibility of putting more money into the peckets of transit employees or into liberalized fringe benefits. But that is only half the problem.

.The Transport Workers Union, which got all of its 8 percent increase for 1974 and its 6 percent for 1975 before the pay freeze went into effect last July, recognizes that any increases negotiated now will be frozen. But it argues that the M.T.A. should negotiate higher rates on the same basis as any private employer, even if its members have to wait to get their extra cash.

This is a suicidal theory in terms of the city ever getting hack into condition to meet its hills on a pay-asyou-go basis. It is one Governor Carey has rejected in new cootracts for state employees. The pattern-setting pact just negotiated covering 3,300 state troopers provides for no increase in salary rates or fringes.

For the city to embark on a policy of deferred increases —on top of those to which it is already committed uoder the existing freeze of old contracts—would be to saddle itself with a higher base for pension computation and a higher jumping-off point for future wage agreements. There is no argument in either fiscal responsibility or equity to justify piling up liabilities of this kind when the city is, even now, so desperately short of assetsimmediate or prospective.

Unlike most other groups in the municipal civil service, the transit employees not only received all of their oast wage guarantees but an additional 22 cents in two semiannual cost-of-living adjustments, an area in which they pioneered under the expiring contract.

The responsibility for drawing the line in the subway talks rests not with the M.T.A. or with the three-member fact-finding panel appointed under the Taylor Law hut with the arbiters of the city's financial future—the Governor, the Mayor and the control board. It is time for them to get out the padlock.

Whose Primary?

The New York Democratic primary has almost nothing to do with democracy and almost everything to do with the retention of power by the party's political bosses in this state-because of the most complicated, undemocratic and expensive primary rules imaginable.

None of the names of the actual Presidential candidates will appear on the ballot for the April 6 primary because, in the absence of any legal requirement that the names be listed, the Board of Elections has decided that it cannot list them

Thus, in lieu of Presidential candidates' names, voters in each of the state's 39 Congressional districts will be presented with slates, some of which will he committed to certain candidates and some of which will be uncommitted. But not every caodidate will be represented by a slate in every Congressional district because (a) 1,250 valid signatures of registered Democrats are required in each district to have a slate listed in that district; (b) that is an extraordinarily expensive effort (the Udall campaign, for example, estimates that it spent $20,000 to get slates listed in just 23 districts), and (c) signatures are highly vuloerable to technical challenge.

Consider the problems of mounting midwinter petition drives manned principally by amateurs to collect the requisite signatures. Carelessly collected signatures are valueless. If, for example, a person bas signed her name oo the registration book "Jane A. Roe," but has signed the petition "Jane Roe" or has signed more than one petition, even in good faith, ber signature may be stricken. Thus, a candidate who files with less than double the number of required signatures in a district is likely to find his slate off the ballot if an all-out challenge cootest hreaks out. But that is just the tactic which state leaders of the Jackson campaign are using in a highly organized attack on the petitions of other candidates. Under the twisted logic of the New York Election Law, their effort is perfectly legal and a great temptation.

This system makes even less sense than the foolish waste involved in having two primaries for the state. Taken as a whole, it is a system that is indefensible. Unless, of course, you are one of the clubbouse bosses and want the smallest turnout and the greatest confusion in order to retain power. Then it is made to order. But it is still not democratic.

Rights of Spring

With only a few days to go before the first scheduled exhibition game and little more than a month before opening day, winter's hot-stove league has been extended and spring training has not yet started for professional haseball in North America. Most of the sliders and double-plays are taking place in hotel rooms where the player representatives and the club owners are trying to interpret for the umpteenth time the meaning of the "reserve clause" that binds players to teams forever and a day. Until a compromise is worked out, the club managements have padlocked the ball-

A few months ago, an arbitrator ruled that there could be realistic limitations on the venerable clause in player contracts, and a Federal judge upheld the ruling, which said that players could be free agents after playing one contract year and one option year. While boping to get this ruling reversed, the owners have proposed to stretch the binding clause to nine yearshalf a lifetime in a player's perishable arms, legs and

In a new era of jumped franchises, broadcasting rights and superstar salaries, it is hard to root for the home team anymore. It may be sold down or across the river, together with the players; that almost happened a second time to the San Francisco (ex-New York) Giants in the past few days. Since the "national pastime" has long outgrown its knickers and is into big business, the rights of the players should be equated with those of the clubs. Let a hundred contracts blossom, a hundred schools of baseball strategy contend.

Still Too Few Jobs

The number of people with jobs in this country has climbed back to its pre-recession peak of 86.3 million. That is welcome evidence of recovery from the worst economic slump in nearly four decades. But the sharp growth in the labor force in the last year and a half means that the army of job-seekers is still above seven million, an intolerably high figure.

The brightening national employment picture masks pockets of double-digit unemployment in such key industrial states as New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Michigan. In New York City the latest statistics are particularly gloomy. They show the idle totalrecorded at 12.2 percent for January-as still going up in the face of the national downturn in joblessness, Countercyclical revenue sharing and special publicservice employment programs, accented toward teenagers, are badly needed to help New York and other distressed areas. That need is sharpened by Indications in the overall national figures that blacks and other minorities are lagging behind whites in the recovery. Their unemployment total rose last month while the white total inched down.

A Victory for Guns

A subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee hrought a tepid little gun-control compromise to the full committee and learned a lesson it should have known all along: that the gun lobby will scream as loudly at "craftily" designed half-way bills as it will at gun-control

The subcommittee presented legislation which would have hanned about 71 percent of the guns now in circulation, but which still had plenty of loopholes. The gun lobhy roared, activated its constituency and gleefully pointed out the loopboles. The committee blanched, reversed itself and, in a move that probably signals the end of any rational expectation of gun-control legislation during this election year, recommitted its ragged little effort to the subcommittee. . .

The chief lobhyist for the National Rifle Association exulted that the motion was a "great victory for constitutional rights." It would be more accurate to say that it was a great victory for the continuance of the mayhem that handguns do in this society.

Another Mandate?

The Palestine Liberation Organizatioo leader, Yasir Arafat, is reportedly interested in the possibility of a United Nations trusteeship over the Jordan West Bank and Gaza Strip, pending an ultimate political settlement for the Palestinians of the two Israeli-occupied areas. The notion might well be dismissed by neutral observers as a mere trial balloon-or, by Israeli partisans, as a Troian horse-or, hy some Arabs, even as a red herring. But, whatever the metaphor, it is at least a fresh elemeot in a diplomatic morass, out of which some possibly useful discussions might emerge.

The trusteeship idea is not new. For years past it has been the preferred option of many West Bank notables who boped thereby to avoid the uncomfortable choice of allegiance to the P.L.O. or to their former ruler, King Hussein of Jordan. What is new is any support for the idea from withio the P.L.O. leadership.

If Mr. Arafat is indeed taking this proposal seriously, he will probably have as much trouble selling it to the more extreme factions of his own fragmented organization as the Arab side would have in making it acceptable to the Israelis. Official Palestinian spokesmen in Beirut have already denied that any such temporizing formula has become P.L.O. policy.

At the same time, it would be an error for Israeli leaders to reject the notion out of hand, whatever their well-founded misgivings about an authority as unreliable as the United Nations. It is cooceivable that an interim United Nations administration might provide the opening for King Hussein to regain a voice in the West Bank future-a responsibility which was summarily taken from him, and assigned to the P.L.O., by the 1974 Arab summit conference in Rabat.

Belatedly, Israelis now recognize their error in failing to promote a negotiation with Jordan before the Rabat meeting injected the less tractable P.L.O. into the diplomatic picture. That opportunity which seemed lost might he oudged into life again; there are eveo signs that leading Arab governments-including, most significantly, Syria—are reconsidering the Rabat decisioo and are no longer averse to King Hussein's reassertion of his old West Bank claims.

Israel has asked the United States to sound out the Arab governments on further steps that might be taken to soften the longstanding state of belligerency in the Middle East. No idea should be excluded from creative

Letters to the Editor

About Drinking in the Streets

As reported in The Times, the City Council passed a bill on Feb. 24 that would make it an offense to drink alcoholic beverages oo the city streets. The bill passed by a 2-to-I margin. A violator would receive a summons and if convicted could receive a maximum punishment of a $10 fine and ten days in prison. Mayor Beame bas yet to sign the bill.

Ironically, a new state law went into effect on Jan. I decriminalizing public intoxication and providing for police referral of publicly intoxicated persons to either their homes or to emergency receiving stations. The City Council bill would seem to be at odds with this new state law and to return the burdeo of enforcing a statute regulating drinking behavior and the commission of a victimless crime to the police and the judicial system. Moreover, these two laws takeo together would say that public drunkenness is oot a crime whereas public drinking is a punishable offense.

Ooe outstanding example of a more appropriate police role io the community is the program established in December 1973 by the City Police Department's Twentieth Precinct (59th to 86th Street) in cooperation with the Manhattan Bowery Project, A police-civilian rescue team picks up publicly iotoxicated people on a voluntary hasis. The rescue team delivers these people to two local bospitals for In-patieot detoxification. The team also offers other assistance, such as nelping persons off the malls to safety or to their homes, and puts a stop to har-assment of passers-by. There have been over 1,000 admissions to hospitals and 2,000 people have beeo given other assistance. Wronged Americans

One of the most significant symbolic events of the eotire Bicentennial has recently occurred with little notice from the press. On Feo. 19, the 34th anniversary of Franklio Rooseveit's Executive Order 9066, which authorized the procedure whereby more than 110,000 Japanese-Americans were incarcerated in concentration camps, President Ford issued Proclamation 4417. In it, for the first time, an American President specifically acknowledged that the evacuation was wrong:

"We now know what we should have known then-not only was that evacuation wrong, but Japanese-Americans were and are loyal Americans." the President said. He closed his proclamation with the resolve "that this kind of action shall never again he repeated."

All Americans concerned with freedom should applaud the President's action. At the same time we should all be aware that the experience of the evacuation remains a loaded gun in the hands of the executive branch: no proclamation can wipe out the decisions of the Supreme Court io the infamous Japanese-American cases which ratified the evacuation,

Nor should we forget that for 22 years-from 1950 to 1972-the same procedure, aimed not at a racial group but at "persons who there is reasonable ground to believe probably will commit or conspire to commit espionage or sabotage," was on the statute books in the *Emergency Detentioo Act of 1950," Although it is axiomatic that only eternal vigilance can preserve liberty. it would be well if the Coogress were to follow up President Ford's excellent proclamation with a legislative endeavor to effect the same eod: the prevention of mass arrest and detention without either indictment or trial of any group of Americans, either ethnic or ideological.

In all discussion of restructuring the City University, a point which is being overlooked is that the closing of Jobo Jay College of Criminal Justice effectively closes out education for undergraduate criminal-justice personnel in the city. John Jay has adapted its schedule to accommodate law-enforcemeot officers (police, corrections, fire) and their changing hours of work by offering the same class both day and evening. No other iostitution provides this opportunity.

Because of its mixed Iberian, African and Amerindian heritage, Brazil has often acted as mediator and interpreter between the United States and the Spanish-speaking republics and would like to do so between Washington and the African countries. It is in an especially good position to do this in Angola, whose colonial history was long tied to that of Brazil-aod, further, Brazil recognized the Luanda government of the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola in November wheo Portugal pulled out.

an authoritarian military dictatorship. However, we should understand that the Brazilian armed forces are not monolithic; there are officers who oppose hrutality and torture.

The President, Gen. Ernesto Geisel, represents the more liberal wing of the officer corps, which wants to reduce military involvement in day-to-day politics (albeit preserving some veto or moderating power) by either returning the Presidency to civilians or increasing the role of Congress, or both.

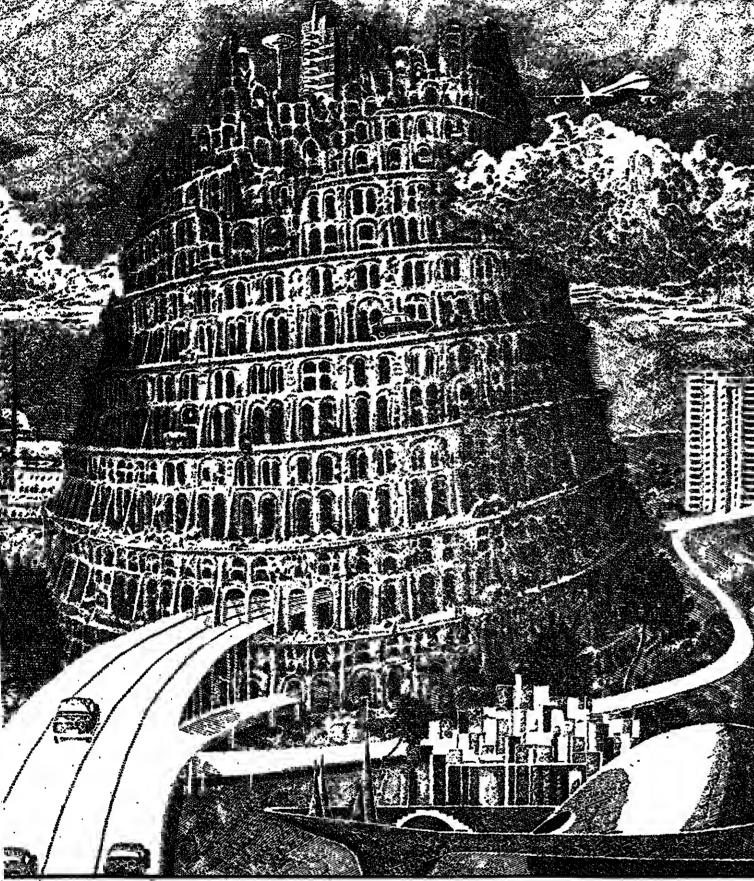

American policy makers are wise to recognize that the Brazilian political situation is slowly changing for the better. Sadly, arbitrary arrests, torture and deaths have taken place, but Presideot Geisel has those responsible on the defensive. His removal of Gen. Ednardo D'Avila Mello, in whose São Paulo command two recent torturerelated deaths occurred, is more symptomatic of the trend of events than the deaths themselves.

How could planning principles withstand the pressures, and in the detailing and in the day-to-day solution of problems how could a general vision of the city be preserved? These were the basic questions at a recent meeting of the committee, in Jerusalem.

What we found is most encouraging to report. The planning of Jerusalem has indeed been turned about, and the. overall goals for the future have been formulated as organizing princi-

 To impose a coherent form upon the city's future growth, a green belt is being established around the urbanized area itself, and a oecklace of parks and landscaped areas, designed for active use, has been interspersed around the walls of the Old City. Accomplishing these open-space objectives involves both considerable ublic expense and the ingenious use of donations from landowners.

 Heights have been scaled down on many proposed developments. On the whole, the bowl-shaped contour and buman scale of the city promises to be preserved, although here and there hullding proceeds at a scale criticized by some experts. Laws of private property and development rights have meant, bowever, a continuous struggle between the expectations of individual developers and the new planning goals and needs of

• The city's unique architectural heritage is not only being preserved hut actively enhanced. Diggings continue, under the supervision of distinguished archeologists. Of special notes is an archeological park that will enable the 20th-century visitor to experience historical huildings, districts and ways of life.

 Planning and development activities under way recognize that Jerusalem after all is not a monument or a sterila museum but the vibrant and cosmopolitan capital of a modern nation. The central business district is being restored and new territory aside for commercial facilities: Industrial-development plans emphasize joh creation in electronics, pharmaceuticals and medical technology to supplement the employment hase

Ooa result is the creation of planning districts for different economic, ethnic and religious groups, as well as the setting up of smaller decentralized city halls where local needs and desires can be expressed io the details of planning.

While the present redirection of tha city's planning is encouraging, certain developmental issues still require more careful attention: retection of the vitality of the diverse cultural groups; accommodating the automobile, al-

However, beneath the committee's deliberations is a question of fac larger import-the fate of tha entire city and the nation of which it is a part. Most communities planning their future do oot face such a question.

Given Israel's precarious position, a sense of uncertainty and danger necessarily intruded, at least subconsciously, into the meeting of the Jerusalem Committee

In this light, the plan assumes a heroic statura by addressing tha longrange and more pressing needs of Jerusalem's citizenry (for housing, jobs, green spaces) as if the oation's larger fate were not at stake.

After all, Jerusalem is an international ceoter io which competing forces-political, social and religiousare at work, a city that has resonance far heyond its own borders and Israel's. Jerusalem's fate, depending on the larger world picture, is oot at this time absolutely clear. Obviously, the national leadership proceeds as if things will work out well, and everyone hopes they will. This hidden coocern gave the committee's entire proceedings a special poignancy.

Giscard: II – European

By C. L. Sulzberger

PARIS RANCE makes no secret of the fact that it is seriously concerned about a growing appearance of paralysis io United States foreign policy, as recently displayed in Africa and even Europe. This is not a matter of cooflict between Paris and Washingtoo, ooly of preoccupatioo here. Certainly in the Elysée Palace, there is reluctance to discuss this delicate subject. Yet the mere fact that its existence is known not only to diplomats but also to leaders of other European states, above all West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who reviewed it last mooth io a meetiog with. President Giscard d'Estaing, makes tha matter moot.

Eveo Mr. Giscard d'Estaing is said by his friends to feel it is wrong for. Washington to advertise so openly its inability-for reasons of internal political debate-to react to threats abroad. At the highest level this is considered very serious. It should not be forgotten that the French Governmeot, since de Gaulle, has consisteotly endorsed strong executive authority, which it now finds lacking across the Atlantic. While France feels that its own policy during the Angolan crisis was logical and ultimately led Paris to take an initiative in recognizing the Popular Movement's Government once it had clearly won, the French point out there was little chance of an alternative because of U.S. flabbiness.

Had the United States given explicit indication that it would counterbalance any external intrusion in the cootested area—like that of Cuhan troops and Soviet equipment; or had it threateoed to break off key negotiations with Moscow unless a halt was called, it is felt the result might have beeo less immutable. The coorse of Russian intervection could have been changed. But the necessary opposition never occurred.

This is a realistic nation and it would seem that Giscard has decided on two basic courses of action. To start with, he appears to feel that the European Community must make a greater defensive effort because of the apparent irresolution and political weakness of its superpower partner.

There are only two countries in West Europe that can seriously attempt this, France and Germany. Britain is again reducing its military budget. The other allies can make scant additional effort. Therefore, both Paris and Bonn agree to step up defense, with the West Germans working directly within the NATO setup, the Freoch cootinuing tangeo-

It is ofteo felt that General da Gaulle helieved France should always work for international equilibrium and that while the United States was militarily much stronger than the Soviet Union, it was sensible to give Moscow more sympathy and support than might normally have been expected.

The Giscardien theory is complex. It insists that foreigners teod too often to analyze French policy in terms of past appearances. Each Paris Government pursues its own calculations. Anyway, it is clear today that Paris is less coocerned with a precise world balaoce than a search for détente and the means of avoiding East-West confrootation

One may add to this analysis that Giscard is not as convioced as some others that the world strategic halance has been upset. Rather than a

7 of the Democratic Delegate Candidates: Why They Run

By FRANK LYNN

For the first time in many years, the New York Democratic Presidential primary will be a crucial part of the process of winnowing out Presidential hopefuls—a procedure that began in New Hampshire last week.

Five Democratic Presidential contenders are making major efforts in the April 6 primary to win substantial portions of the 274 delegates—9 percent of the natinnwide total—that the state will send to the Democratic Natinnal Convention have in July

Convention here in July.

The Democratic candidates—Senator Henry
M. Jackson of Washington; Jimmy Carter, former Georgia Goveroor, Representative Mnrris

of Alabama, and former Senator Fred Harris of Oklahoma-have already mobilized hundeds of workers throughout the state, are pre-pared to spend thrusands of dollars and have scheduled extensive campaigning in the state on the next month.

One candidate who had planned an extensive campaign, Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana, withdrew from the race Thursday, hut his delegate slates remain. Some are likely to switch to Mr. Udail and others to an uncommitted status. The New York Republican Presidential primary should be relatively quiet, with only a small number of Republican uncommitted dele-gate candidates challenged by supporters of Ronald Reagan. Vice President Rockefeller and his New York allies hope to control an un-committed New York delegation—154 dele-gates—without a struggle.

None of the Presidential contenders' names will appear on the primary ballot. Instead, slates of delegates pledged to the candidates will service as their stand-ins.

Who are these Democratic delegate candidates? How were they picked? Why are they

Seven delegate candidates—a nun, e union official, a restaurant owner, a teacher, a college department chairman, a retired person and an editor—shared their experiences in a series of interviews. They were chosen for the interviews at random, although there was some effort to select delegate candidates from various areas and groups in the state.

Six are supporting various Presidential contenders, and the seventh is uncommitted. Their ages range from 23 to 66, but despite this wide range, and their political differences, they have much in commun.

None has been a national convention delegate before, although one did attend the Democratic issues convention in late 1974, Most belong to political clubs and participated in other campaigns. None expects to spend much of his or her money in the primary campaign.

Most agreed that unemployment was the major issue in the Presidential campaign. Most lack the zeal and die-hard commitment of the George S. McGovern and Eugene McCarthy delegates in 1972 and 1968. Most could support any of the Democratic Presidential candidates except Governor Wallace. Most did not consider Governor Carey a likely candidate for either President or Vice President.

Most do not actively seek the delegate roles, but were selected because they are active political and community workers who could attract votes to a delegate slate.

One of the Bayh delegate candidates, Enmo (Chip) Morselli, who remains on the ballot in the Third Congressional District, which straddles the Nassau-Suffolk County line, was selected because he is a veteran Democratic port any of the Democratic Presidential candiselected because he is a veteran Democratic county committeeman in the Huntington, L.I. area and because he is a full-time United Auto

But most Catholics awaited official sanction, which came with the introduction of the revised liturgy by the Con-gregation for Divine Worship in Rome on Feh. 6, 1974. In the interim the document bas been translated into En-glish, and priests, religious educators, nuns and lay people bave been getting acquainted with the reforms. The Rev. Thomas A. Krosnicki, a liturgist for the National Conference of Bishops, estimates that a fourth of the 156 dioceses in the United States will begin using the rites immediately and that others will put them into effect through the next year. As of the first Sunday of Lent next year, the new practices will be mandatory.

In this region the Archdiocese of New York and the Dioceses of Brooklyn, Bridgeport, Trenton and Newark have conducted vigorous drives to introduce the new forms. A slower pace is being

Patterson, Camdeo and Rockville Centre. For many priests and lay people, the revisions call for shifts in attitude as well as in behavior, especially to-ward the meaning of sin. While the traditional rite, au-thorized in the year 1215 by the Fourth Lateran Council, stressed personal wrongdoing and accountability to God, liturgists point out that the new forms amplify the

The World Aspects

"The church is now saying that sin effects my relations not only with God hut also with my hrothers and with with my hrothers and with my world," said the Rev. Joseph M. Champlin, pastor of the Holy Family parish in Fulton, N. Y., and a noted liturgist. "Therefore I must be reconciled to other people and nature as well as with God, That means that things adopted by the Dioceses of like pollution and ecology bave definite moral over-

The word "reconciliation" is rapidly replacing "confession" because it is thought hy the church to convey better the whole concept of pen-ance and forgiveness.

Another expectation is that offering the face to face meeting with a priest will afford a deeper examination of one's conscience.

"External actions Indicate inner reality," said the Rev. Joseph L. Cunningham of the Breoklyn diocese's liturgical commission. "If someone confesses that he is constantly picking on his children, we should ask why. If we can deal with this in an open way, I think we will find the sacrament better received.

"The role of the priest is more difficult. In a sense he has to respond to what the person is really saying."

viewed drew a sharp distinction between the more open, informal method penance and psychological counsel-

"It is not a place just to unload," said the Rev. Kenneth Jadoff of St. Tho-mas More parish in Manhat-"It is still a sacrament for spiritual renewal."

However, the new forms clearly reflect the trend to-ward personalization in the post-Vatican II church and add liturgical richness to what some bave considered an austere sacrament.

"The big difference," ac-cording to the Rev. Richard Groncki, liturgical officer for the Newark Diocese, "is the prayerful attitude engen-dered between priest and penitent. This was formerly the most ritually devoid of all the sacraments."

Participation in penance has declined sharply in the last decade. A National Opioion Research Center Study found that those going to confession at least once a month dropped from 38 per-cent to 17 percent between 1964 and 1974 and that those who "almost never" attended rose to 12 percent from 6 percent

"Perbaps the decrease in the receipt of this sacrament in recent years is due to a forgetfulness of its value," Terence Cardinal Cooke said in a recent pastoral letter. He commended the new rite as a means of strengthening "our union with God and each other in love and Peace.

Bishop Walter Curtis of Bridgeport, head of the Catholic Bishops' hiturgical commission, was more explicit. "It is my prayerful hope," he said, "that the new rite of penance will be the cause of a return to the sacrament."

The Soviet Minister of Agriculture, Dmitri S. Polyansky, was abruptly dropped from the governing Polithuro apparently as punishment for the country's disastrous grain crop failure last year. His name was conspicuously absent from the list of newly elected Politburo members that Leonid L Brezhnev read yesterday at the closing session of the 25th Communist Party Congress in Moscow. Two other party figures, Grigory V. Romanov and Dmitri F. Ustinov, were promoted to full members of the Politburo. Mr. Romanov, the Leningrad party chief, and Mr. Ustinov, head of the Soviet defense industry complex, were formerly alternate, or nonvoting members. [Page 1, Cols. 6-7.]

The British Government announced that it would continue the administration of Northern Ireland indefinitely following the failure of its efforts to politically reconcile the province's Roman Catholics and Protestants. Merlyn Rees, Britain's Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, told the House of Commons that the 78-seat Northern Ireland Convention, which was elected last May to work out a political reconciliation, would be dissolved at midnight and the British would run Ulster "for some time to

The British pound, once the pillar of the world's economy, fell below $2 for the first time. For the last six months the pound had been close to falling through the psychological barrier. It closed at $1.975 yesterday. Its value declined, it was said, because the Bank of England decided that Britain would be better off with a shrunken pound. [1:2-3.]

The United States proposed an internapromised to eventually answer governments seeking the identities of officials bribed by the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation. But Deputy Secretary of State Robert S. percent from 7.8 percent in January and total employment in February rose slightly to the July 1974 prerecession peak of 86.3 million. The number of unemployed as estimated by the Government's montbly sample survey of households was 7,136,000. This figure was also seasonally adjusted. President Ford, campaigning in Illinois, said the figures were "extremely encouraging." George Meany, president of the A.F.L.-C.LO., said the "official figures seriously understate employment in America. [1:8.]

The cancer-death rate in the United States rose at a faster rate last year than in any year since 1945, according to the Netional Center for Health Statistics, which estimates that the 1974-75 increase will be between 2 and 3 percent, perhaps slightly above 3 percent. Not since 1950 has the increase in the cancer death rate been as high as 2 percent, and the rate has not been above 2 percent since 1945 when the increase over the previous year was 4 percent. [1:6-7.]

F. Lee Bailey, Patricia Hearst's chief counsel, accused a Government witness of trying "to fix" the Hearst case with a negotiated plea of guilty for a probationary term, and was accused by the witness of having approved of the proposal. Dr. Joel Fort, a medical consultant, and Mr. Bailey called each other a liar. [1:8.]

Flu and Pneumonia Hit Epidemic Levels In All U.S. Regions

ATLANTA, March 5 (AP)— Deaths linked to influenza and pneumonia reached epidemic levels in every region of the nation last week for the first time this year, the Center for Disease Control reported today. The center announced that ,191 pneumonia or flu-related eaths were recorded in 121 major test cities across the nation for the week ending Feb. 28. That is 656 deaths above the expected number" calculated from studies of previous nonepidemic years, a spokesman for the center said. Using a complex formula, scientists for the center add a cushion factor of 50 to 60 to establish an "epidemic threshhold."

For the year, the spokesman said, the health agency has recorded 1,270 "excess deaths" flu-related deaths above the expected number. This compares with some 12,700 "excess deaths" reported during the epidemic of Hong Kong flu in New England, Middle Atlantic and Western states again led the rising statistics as epi-demic levels continued for the fourth consecutive week in those areas.

Fin-related deaths exceeded the epidemic threshhold in the central and Middle Western states for the first time this year, the center's weekly re-port of statistics showed.

Data reviewed from 532 reporting institutions in 36 states showed "increased absenteeism in 30 percent of the schools and 29 percent of the indus-tries, and increased emergency room visits in 43 percent of the hospitals," the report stated. "Morbidity appeared to be highest in the New England and Middle Atlantic areas, where 60 percent of schools, 46 percent of industries and 43 percent of hospitals reported increases," it said. The flu strain identified as A-Victoria remained responsible for virtually all confirmed #

At 100, Legal Aid Strives to Live Within Budget

By TOM GOLDSTEIN

Founded 100 years ago by merchants who hired one part-time lawyer to give free legal advice to "warthy" German immigrants, the Legal Aid Society has emerged as a central force in the city's criminal-justice system.

With a budget this fiscal year of $25 millino and a ataff of 634 lawyers, Legal Aid, which provides free legal assistance tn poor persons in both criminal and civil matters, is oow the largest law office in the city and the second office in the city and the second largest in the country—surpassed only by the United States Department of Justice.

"Legal Aid has become an essential and integral part of the sys-tem," said District Attorney Mario Merola of the Bronx. "Without it, the criminal-justice system would salaries had been frozen have been replaced with lawyers with little or no experience.

The crimical division gets almost all of its funds from the fiscally straitened city.

"We are losing the equivalent of our residents and attendant physicians and replacing them with the equivalent of new internes," said William J. Gallagher, who supervises the 430 lewyers who supervises the 430 lewyers on the criminal staff. "It takes less-experienced lawyers longer to try cases, and that causes congestion."

legal Aid's appeals hureau, which has also been affected, now has a backlog of 1,500 cases, some dating back 18 months. William E. Hellerstein, who beads the appeals hureau, said he would need to increase his staff from 75 to 100 to eliminiate the backlog.

And every day the civil division, which is financed primarily from private contributions, has to turn away 75 to 100 poor people faced with matrimunial, landlurd-tenant, welfare and Medicaid problems.

"We just can't service as many clients as we did before," said Archibald R. Murray, attorney in chief and executive director of the legal group.

"Tens of thousands of matrimonials could pass through our doors," said Kalman Finkel, the head of the civil divisioo. "Our big push is to have recognized the right of a free lewyer to a persoo right of a free lewyer to a persoo seeking a divorce."

Last year, the State Court of Appeals refused to grant that right, and Legal Aid now is pressing its case in Federal court.

For this year, Robert B. Mc-Kay, the president of the society, has set as his priority the raising of a $7.5 million endowraising of a $7.5 million endowment to keep staffing at the civil division at its present levels.

Legal Aid was the first group in the country to provide legal assistance to the poor, but m its early years, its guiding ideology seemed to be aimed as much at preserving the social order as et helping the poor.

By its 75th year, the emphasis of Legal Aid had shifted, and Judge Learned Hand of the United States Court of Appeals criticized lawyers for having failed to help "the little people."

At that time, Legal Aid was still a minor force in the city's justice system, and its 1951 budget was $300,000. Even then, its directors met et downtown clubs that prohibited blacks, Jews and women, and it mede news not for its court victories, but for its social activities.

Wainwright, the landmark decision that had the effect of requiring the clark to profact of requiring the city to provide funds for the adequete representation of poor people eccused of serious crimes.

That year, 65 lawyers worked in the criminal division. By 1970, wheo riots spread through the city's jails, the number had grown to 171. The rioting inmates complained about inadequate repre-sentation by Legal Aid lawyers, who at one stage or another represeot 75 percent of the defendants in the city's criminal courts.

After directors of Legal Aid threatened to cancel their contract unless the city provided more money, the city increased Legal Aid's budget drametically, and the number of lawyers in the criminal division has nearly tripled since Inmates also complained that they were represented by different lawyers during each stage of the criminal justice process. In 1971, a task force of lawyers and judges.

New Strategies for Option Dealings

By ROBERT METZ

Soma traders and investors who are beginning to feel comfortable with listed option market calls are moving to new strategies in their search for profits. A call gives the holder the right to boy 100 shares of a stock at a predetermined price within a set time. If a different call on the stock with the same or shorter maturity is sold short at the sama time, the option trader has a "spread." Spreads are becoming increasingly popular and can lead to quick profits—and losses—for the trader, and they can offer a relatively long-term strategy for the in-vestor. The commissions in-volved are substantial.

Experts say that the bull spread, the strategy used by the nontrader, is being fairly widely used now—often not wisely, since some pay too much for the spread to allow a reasonable chance of profit.

In a buil spread, the option that is sold short has a higher striking price — that is, a higher price at which the option can be exercised. In today's market individ-uals seeking bull spreads are looking for stocks that have not participated to any marked degree in the 1976 hull market. The "spreader" hopes the stock he chooses will rise substantially and that he will profit on balance. That is to say, he hopes to sell his call at a substantially higher price and for more than enough to offset the loss he will experience in an up market in repurchasing the call on which he was short.

Here is an example of the strategy offered by Dennis L. Mirus, a principal of Evergreen Option Partners, a Chicago hedge fund. He said that some believed that the shares of the Tesoro Petroleum Corporation at 1534 were underpriced.

Using calls, the spreader might huy for 2¾—$275 per 100-share contract — the October 15's (a call with a striking price of 15 that falls due Oct. 15) and sell short the October 20's (striking price 20, due Oct. 15) at 11/4 —$125.

The spreader puts up $150 the difference between $275 and the $125 he receives wheo he sells the call

If Tesoro should close by If Tesoro should close by mid-October at 22, the October 15's would be worth $2,200 minus roughly $1,500 (15 striking price times 100 shares), or about $700. The October 20's would be worth appearance 22 200 minus $2,000. roughly $2,200 minus $2,000 (20 striking price times 100 shares), or about $200. The spreader would close out his spread by selling the 15's and repurchasing the 20's to clear $700 less $200, or $500.

The spreader would then subtract the cost of opening the spread from the $500— $150—and he has $350 less $150—and he has $300 less commissions, which Mr. Mr. Mirus says will run ¼ point to open the spread and ¼ to close it, or $50. His gain in this situation is thus reduced to $300.

But if the spreader held his position until the close of the option period and Tesoro shares were trading at less than 17, he would lose money. For example, if he were to close out his position with Tesoro shares at 16%, his long option would be worth 1%—$175 and his short position would be worthless.

Remember that he spent $150 to open the spread and he has received just $175 in closing it out. His commission costs of $50 would put him in the red by $25.

On the other hand, the most he can lose is $150 plus commissions, and he's had a shot at substantial profits in the meantime.

A Clarification

In a column on call options in this space recently, it was stated that one whose stock was called could circumvent the call through the purchase of an equivalent

This approach is rarely practical since equivalent options are seldom available after call holders begin to exercise their rights to shares. The call would ordinarily he met through the narily be met through the release of the called shares by the option writer.

Changes in Federal tax law to end "Hogical treatment of capital gains and losses" and provide incentives for nf the New York Stock Exchange.

In testimnny before the Joint Economic Committee of the Congress, Mr. Need-ham noted that in raising capital, corporations now are relying more on debt financ-ing than issuance of new stock. Present tax law, he said, permits companies to deduct debt interest, while dividends have to be paid out of after-tax profits and are also taxed as income for Such tax treatment, the Big Board official said, "reduces incentives to take risk and the double taxation of corporate profits distributed as dividends significantly reduces potential after-tax yields, especially for those in the higher income brackets.

Also testifying before the Joint Economic Committee, Charles G. Bluhdorn, chair-man of Gulf and Western Industries, warned that as re-covery spurred greater oil imports the nation egain would be exposed to "blackmail" by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Coun-

Mr. Bluhdorn said he disagreed sharply with the view that OPEC had been weakened by the recession-caused decline in oil consumption. "OPEC," he asserted, "is

Charting Heat Sources Two California geologists have devised a method of charting the potentially valuable sources of beat in the earth's interior by datecting certain natural electrical sig-nals with an instrument in a moving car. Wayne L. Sayer and Pat Wright of the Geothermal Research Corporation in Walnut Creek, were granted Pat-ent 3,942,101 for the method this week. They believe it will make commercially seasible the barnessing of abundant sources of geothermal energy not previously availaelectrical currents from the earth are reflected in electrostatis voltage gradients above the ground in proportion to the magnitude of nearby subterranean geothermal sources. In the patented procedure, the gradients are recorded and mapped.

The inventors found that movement over the earth's surface was required for the surveys. They were not cer-tain, but suspected that "in place" reading was interfered with by air static voltages. In a car they mounted a strip chart recorded for automatic operation over the selected routes. In tests, 40 miles per hour proved a practical speed, and parallel paths along the earth's magnetic of force were found lines preferable.

After the informattion is plotted on a field map it can be evaluated by a specialist for decisions as to further tests and drilling. The inventors call their method a reconnaissance tool.

Aircraft Housing

Lieut Col Charles Lindbergh of the air force (but not the Charles Augustus Lindbergh who made the first solo flight across the Atlantic Ocean) was awarded a patent this week for a selferecting structure to house aircraft.

Col. Lindbergh invented the structure while assigned to the Air Force Academy in West Germany.

Patent 3,940,892 refers to the building as a "pop-up" structure, erected by hydraulic pressure. The sections can be air-transported or trucked to the site, hinged together and raised by pump pressure into a long arch. For recov-ery, the valves can be opened and the structure relaxed. Or for more permanent use, atrength can be added by welding the joints and the hydraulic elements.

Drunk Driving Preventer

A device for preventing drunken driving of a vehicle, whether car or aircraft, tests: the person's memory and vis-ual capability. Yasuhisa Take-uchi, of Yokosuka, Japan, was granted patent 3,942,151 this week, assigning it to the Nissan Motor Company, Ltd. Several different digits seiected at random are flashed one at a time onto a screen for the driver to memorize. Then a full aet of digits, such as 1 through 9, is displayed in numerical order, also one at a time. The driver is expected to press a button-when each of those he memorized appears on the screen. If he fails in the test, the

A.&P. Is Retraining All Its Employees From A to Z ARCO HAS BEGUN

taken in years. A. & P. is preparing to expand the retraining program through e new facility it is building next to its beadquarters site in Montvale, N.J.
The new structure, to be known as A. & P.'s Center for Professional Development will he in operation some time next year. It will accom-modate 150 trainees at one time and its own staff and have its own television studio for the development of internal TV communications. On the theory that in-doctrination of new prin-ciples of service and performance work best when all employee levels are included, retraining will work from the top down to provide coodinated and uniform orientation. The program will proceed lebel by level, the instructions of each meshing with those of the others. The effort began early last mooth when Mr. Scott, Mr. Gentry and Mr. Longacre took four days off to attend a top-management briefing in Phoenix held by the Presidents Association of the American Management Asso-cietion Along with top execntives of electronicse, com-puter, research and other companies, the A. & P. men heard lectures by psychologists, consultants and businessmen on management priociples and motivation.

Later, 31 mid-management A. & P. executives participated in similar briefings for 31/2

The program is geared to avoid the common problem of concentrating on eitner mid-management or on only several employee levels "and thus to preclude having only some aspects of the business motivated and boping that others will be too," said Charles J. Tackney, A. & P.'s vice president for training.

To become a healthy company," he added, "we have to manage every single asnect of the company efficiently and make each store a consumer-oriented one."

The retraining program now calls for two sets of briefings proceeding simul-taneously. One will be separate sessions for 188 district managers; 152 meat merchandisers; 120 produce mer-chandisers; 500 field supervisors; and all 2,200 store managers. The second will be a vast effort of its own—the retraining of about 27,000 employees who man the checkouts of all the A.& P. stores.

As a result, while the typi-cal shopper may be unaware of it, except if she sees a group of employees receiving e short talk by a field training supervisor, the nation's second largest food chain will be indoctrinating all its employees as they go about their business. They will be concentrating in classrooms and in the stores on what is required to provide efficient, courteous service; clean, well-functioning stores; and food in at least acceptable, attractive condition.

The public probably may relate A. & P.'s revitalized efforts to the big chain's current promotion tied around "Price and Pride," with two symbolic A. & P. employees appropriately tagged by those names and acting as personi-fications of the companys "quality and value" cam-paign. Customers are invited tisements to return to A. & P. and share in the benefits of that campaign.

Internally, the retraining effort also stresses pride. "The top management briefings in which our people participated concentrated on the priociple that subordinates function best in a healthy environment or when they get satisfaction in their work," Mr. Tackney said. work," Mr. Tackney said.
"This means that when people are involved, when partments are also aimed at convincing employes that professional skills and cour-teous service are "what brings the customer back again and again. It'a an appeal to an employee's pride and aelf-re-spect," said Mr. Tackney, "and we also take the extra step of singling out some who have been retrained to become the training officer of others in the store"

The drive for improved motivation at A.& P. appears to be paying off.

PENSION TAX RISE SEEN LESS LIKELY

House Unit Leaves Door Open For Pay Above $16,500

By EDWIN L. DALE Jr. Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, March 5-A House subcommittee supplied more evidence today that Congress would out raise the Social Security tax rate this year, as requested by President Ford.

However, the Social Security sobcommittee of the Ways and Means Committee left open the possibility of a small increase in the wage base on which the Social Security tax rate is comsocial Security tax rate is computed. This would raise taxes only for the 15 percent of the labor force with earnings in 1977 above $16.500 a year, the currently established wage base for 1977.

Up to 1,000 in the Race For 205 Delegate Posts

As many as 1,000 Demo-crats will be running for the 205 district delegate posts to be filled in the April 6 primary. Sixty-nine addi-tional delegates will be se-lected by the Democratic State Committee and apportioned to each candidate on the basis of the primary

The district delegates are running on slates of four to six delegates in each of the state's 39 Congressional districts. The number of delegates gates apportioned to a district depends on population and the Democratic vote in the district in the last two Presidential elections.

Delegate candidates qualified for the ballot by filing with local boards of elections petitioos with the sig-natures of at least 1250 enrolled Democrats in the aupporting Senator Jackson. Mr. Manes said that Miss Berg bad been selected because he had known her for 20 years and because he wanted to have at least one labor representative on each Congressional district slate. Miss Berg agreed with that theory. "I want to be a delegate because I want labor's point of view to be put across," ahe said. Miss Berg, who teaches at Public School 178 in Jamai-ca, Queens, is also the Queens political action coordinator for the union. She said that she was supporting Mr. Jackson because "he was one of the first to speak out on Soviet Jewry. he is a staunch supporter of labor and his children go to Washington public schools, not to private schools."

A Carter Supporter James Dupree, the 40-year-old chairman of the social sciences department at Onondaga Community College, said he was supporting Mr. Carter because, as a native Georgian, he had been following the career of the former Georgia Governor for some time.

Mr. Dupree, a Democratic committeeman in the middle-class, integrated 17th ward of Syracuse, said he admired Mr. Carter's stance as a new Governor, that "the oid Southern way was gone." Mr. Duoree added that Mr. Carter "had a new Southern policy, one of the first to take a new attitude on the racial question."

Mr. Dupree also cited a magazine profile in The New York Times and a Carter speech at Syracuse University as spurs to write Mr. Carter's upstate campaign manager and offer his services to the campaign. 'Those two things firmed up my de-cision that I would be willing to work for him," he said.

Mr. Dupree, who is married and the father of two. Was one of a minority of the seven delegate candidates who enthusiastically supported Senator McGovern io the 1972 Presidential campaign. As for his own political philosophy, he said, "I don't like to get into labels; I'm a historian."

He said he had no second choice. Governor Carey on the ticket? "He hasn't im-pressed me," said Mr. Dupree, echoing most of the other delegate candidates. Like Mr. Dupree, Sister Patricia Dillon worked in the 1972 McGovern campaign, but is a longtime fan of Mr. Harris, whom she first met four years ago.

The 34-year-old nun is a member of the Religious of Jesus and Mary order and is a full-time tenant organizer in the Bronx working for the Northwest Bronx Community and Clergy Coalition. To avoid any conflict with her social work, she is running as a Harris delegate candidate in the adjacent 23d

A member of the liberal enjamin Franklin Democratic Club in Riverdale, Pat Dillon, as she refers to herself, said she bad been asked by John Klotz, a leader of the liberal New Democratic Coalition to run as a delegate candidate.

But first she consulted with the 19 ouns with whom she lives at St. John's Convent on West 23d Street, oot far from her family home. They have to put up with me when I'm never around and don't cook when I'm supposed to," she said.

Like Mr. Harris, she strongly supports Federal housing and food programs. She said that Secator Jackson was unacceptable to ber as a candidate, because "I den't like his military stance; we should be spending money on housing and bealth needs, not guns." Governor Wallace is also unacceptable to her.

Uocommitted Candidate Several degrees to the right of Sister Patricia, John Festino of Scotia, a Scheoectady suburb, described himself as a moderate and said that none of the Democratic contenders, including Governor Wallace, was unacceptable to him. "Being a party member, I would have to support whoever gets the endorsement; I'm a strong believer in the organization," said Mr. Festino who is running as part of the Democratic organization's uncommitted slate in Albany and Scheoectady

Counties. Mr. Festine. a 66-year-old ratired business executive, unabashedly conceded that he had been campaigning for the delegate job since last summer. "I've never been to national convention and before I call it quits in poli-tics. I'd like to go to one,"

he said. Mr. Festino had a lot of chits to call on. He has been a Democratic committeeman for 40 years, a onetime town leader and has been active in fraternal and Italian-American groups. Living at the same address for 43 years, he knows most people in the area by their first name, He and his wife Lena collected 49 signatures on designating petitions be-tween them.

A Wallace Supporter

Issues? "I don't want to give away things that will keep raising taxes—take care of the needy but let others pay their fair share." Mr. Festino said.

Many degrees to the right of Mr. Festino, Margaret M. Sklenar is a Wallace delegate candidate in Staten Island and an obviously enthusiastic member of the John Birch Society, which she saya has a thriving chapter on Staten Island.

The fiftyish Mrs. Sklenar owns and operates the Sleepy Hollow Inn in Pleasant Plains and has never been active in political campaigns. She has been a small con-tributor to Governor Wallace and was asked to be a delegate through a friend of a friend, reflecting the difficulmy philosophy." Her philosophy? "Freedom of Choice is what I'm in favor of, freedom to be whatever you want to be; now you do what the government says." Mrs. Sklenar, the mother of two married children and separated, is most voluble when, following the Birchist line, she talks of a Rockefeller-led conspiracy" to kill "constitutional government" in the United States and to promote a government." "one - world

She said that Governor Wallace was not a racist nor was sbe. "I have no objection to anyone buying a house next door to me . . . don't make me look like I'm a reduck from Alabama," she said.

TONIGHT SEE WHY AMERICANS MIGHT STILL BE COLONIALS IF IT WEREN'T FOR THE PEOPLE OF NEW YOR

No state played a more important role in America's War of Independence than NewYork State. Yet somewhere along the road from Boston to Valley Forge, our ancestors' contribution has been forgotten.

Few people know that the first major victory for the Americans occurred in upper New York. Or that without New York's economic support of the colonies, the war would be celebrated as a British victory.

Or that one-third of all battles took place on New York soil.

That's why, starting tonight, New York's contribution to the American Revo-lution will be explored in the Channel 13 4-part series, "Paths of Rebellion: New York in the Revolution."
Made possible by an underwriting grant from Manufacturers

Hanover. Each program will be devoted to a single region of New York State and narrated by descendants of Revolutionary War figures and local history buffs, who find the Revolu tion so fascinating, they sound like they took part in it.

Tune in and discover what happened 200 years ago, right in our own backyard.

TV Auction to Aid 7 Arts Institutions In Brooklyn Tonight 10:00

Television viewers will be able to bid tonight for such 10:18 things as honorary ownership of the Brooklyn Bridge for a day, an organically homegrown luncheon for two in Stewart Mott's penthouse garden, a party for 30 on an antique Chinese junk or their own wedding ceremony at the Cloisters.

The auction will benefit even of Brooklyn's cultural institutions—the Brooklyn Academy of Music, Brooklyn Arts and Cultural Association, the Brooklyn Children's Museum Brooklyn Philharmonia, Brooklyn Public Library, Long Island University's Triangle Theater and the Brooklyn Museum. The five-hour sale called "Lights! 11:30 Cameral Auction! will be held from 10 P.M. today to 3 A.M. tomorrow on WNEW (Channel 5) and WXTV (Channel 41). More than 500 items are to be auctioned during the sale, which will emanate from the

NBC-TV color studios in Brooklyn, in the hope of raising at least $1 million. Such well-known auctioneers will participate as John Marioo, president of Sotheby Parke Ber-
